Guard in Prison Break Reinstated

Charles A. Baldwin, Jr., 26-y ear-old rookie guard at the State Prison, who was summarily discharged for "gross negligence" after the three-man escape there last Friday, was reinstated today after a State House hearing at which the ancient dungeon was described as "a bag of dynamite."

STILL FREE—The hunt for escaped convict George E. Hayes (above) continued today as State Prison Guard Charles A. Baldwin, Jr., fired for "gross negligence" in the break, was ordered reinstated.

Warden Francis J. W. Lanagan agreed to take back the South Boston war veteran after hearing Commr. of Corrections J. Paul Doyle and Sen. John E. Powers of South Boston suggest that action. Baldwin will go back on the midnight to 8 a. m. shift tonight.

It was brought out by Powers, for the first time, that Baldwin had made a report of suspicious activities in the old wing a week before the break, but his superiors did not fellow it through to a discovery of the escape plot.

"One week before the break," the senator said, "on the midnight to eight shift, Baldwin heard the sounds of scraping on stone. He reported it. It was entered on a ledged. The next day an inspection was made."

INSPECTION MADE

Powers said the inspection was conducted near the cells of the prisoners who later went over the wall, Earl and George Baker, and George Hayes, but he did not indicate what the results were.

The Bakers brothers were caught in less than an hour after their escape but Hayes is still sought.

"I think it would be no mistake to reinstate Baldwin," Powers told the commissioner and warden after it had been agreed generally the State Prison was hardly escape-proof.

"I realize the warden is sitting on a keg of dynamite and a lot of them over there should be committed to asylums."

Comr. Doyle, who further stressed the prison was not escape-proof, pointed out that Baldwin had been on the job only a few weeks and could not be expected to be fully aware of inmates' wiles and devices.

"The escape was a mighty clever piece of work," he said. "We must admit they outsmarted us.

ADMIT DUMMIES USED

Doyle said he knew the Bakers of old.

"They began their removal of bricks long before Baldwin was made a guard," he said, "and I don't think the blame should rest with him. The warden has the power to hire and fire. I'm not demanding Baldwin's reinstatement. It's the warden's perogative."

The commissioner announced for the first time that the three prisoners had used "three well placed dummies" in their beds to outwit guards. At the time of the break one official at the prison had denied any dummies were used.

Warden Lanagan said he had been reconsidering his dismissal of Baldwin.

"After hearing the plea of Sen. Powers and knowing the guard's ability I am willing to reinstate him. He tried to do his duty. He had the largest wing in the prison to patrol the night of the break, cells housing 258 inmates. I will not stand in his way."

Comr. Doyle said he would consider the matter closed and the investigation completed.

RAISE MAIL LIMIT TO REICH

WASHINGTON, Sept. 23 (AP) —The weight limit on letter mail to all zones of Germany has been increased to four pounds, six ounces, effective today. Postmaster-General Robert E. Hannegan announced today.

It's Goodby Summer, Fall Really Here

Summer was due to pack its bags and move out late today but the new tenant, Autumn, arrived almost 24 hours ahead of time of the eviction order.

In fact, except for high winds prevailing throughout the night, it would have been a frosty farewell.

Autumn began its nudging at nightfall and sent the mercury plunging down the scale to a low of 29, registered in shivering Pittsfield. Marks of 32—the freezing point—were recorded in Greenville, Me.; Burlington, Vt., and Lebanon, N. H.

In the Middlesex Valley the low mark was 34, recorded at the Concord weather station, which had a maximum reading of 74 yesterday morning.

Lexington's low mark was 35 while readings of 36 at Arlington and 37 at Bedford Airport were other minimums in the area.

Boston's lowest temperature during the chilly night was 40 but weather officials, predicting continued cool weather, said it would climb to the mid-fifties during the day.

With gathering clouds tonight, the weather will be less cool and tomorrow increasing cloudiness will be followed by rain late in the day.

Summer's official departure for the year was set for 5:29 p. m. on astronomical timetables but evictions are the order of the day and autumn proved no exception.

Search 3 Holy Land Synagogues

JERUSALEM, Sept. 23 (AP) — British troops and police searched through the Yemenite Jewish quarters of Jerusalem early today, interrupting the pre-Yom Kippur services in at least two synagogues.

Military authoritiles said the congregations were given an hour to complete their services, and when they were not finished in that time those present were asked to leave, and the soldiers then combed the premises.

Witnesses said the troops unrolled holy scrolls and took holy books from lockers.

2d Tropical Storm Stings Florida Coast

MIAMI, Fla., Sept. 23 (AP)—Florida's second tropical storm in a week, nothing yet to compare with the disastrous first, hit the west coast today and swirled north-northeastward, threatening the peninsula with flooding rain and the Atlantic Coast to the north perhaps with destructive winds.

At 5:45 a. m., the weather bureau placed its crest 45 miles south of Tampa with its strongest blasts 50 to 60 miles an hour, not half the velocity that raked the State from east to west coast six days ago.

The bureau said it probably would strike near Daytona Beach this afternoon with gathering fury. It hoisted storm warnings from Fernandina, Fla., to Moultrieville, S. C., and warned small craft to stay in port from Moultrieville to Hatteras, N. C.

The new storm with its far-flung perimeter was between a breeze and a gale, although sharper blows came at intervals as it edged inland. Its most acute menace apparently hung over the rich Okeechobee mucklands where the inhabitants struggled wearily with relentless water from earlier downpours. Farmers, business men, laborers and convicts worked side by side to patch canal dikes and protect four towns and 30,000 vegetable-growing acres.

In danger were Belle Glade, Pahokee, Canal Point and South Bay.

Reports from Lakeland, 50 miles inland, indicated the ill-defined disturbance was well inland and that costal cities had seen the worst, but the wind rose steadily at Daytona Beach, blowing up to 30 miles an hour with gusts nearly 50 at 4 a. m.

U. S. Demands Yugoslavia Return 3 Captives

LT. WILLIAM VAN ATTEN, PFC EARL G. HENDRICK
GIs Taken Captive by Yugoslavs at Gunpoint Near Trieste

TRIESTE, Sept. 23 (AP)—U. S. Army Headquarters in Trieste today demanded the return of an American officer and two enlisted men who, it said, were taken captive by Yugoslavs while on mounted patrol duty on the Trieste free territory frontier yesterday and "forced across the border at gunpoint."

An official report issued by headquarters of U. S. troops in Trieste said the missing men were patroling near the sector where Yugoslavs last week tried to force their way into the free territory.

The Army announcement identified the trio as 1st Lt. William Van Atten, East Orange, N. J.; PFC Earl G. Hendrick, Jr., Arlington, Va., and PFC Glen A. Myers, Edgeley, N. D.

AMBUSHED BEFORE

Van Atten was caught in a Yugoslav ambush in July, 1946, on the road between Gorizia and Trieste, the Army report said. His driver was killed and he and an enlisted man were wounded.

The official Army account of yesterday's occurrence said in part:

"The report of the incident came from the other two members of the patrol, PFC Edison T. Lenhart, Southbury, Ct., and Pvt. George E. Perry, Fort Thomas, Ky., who dashed to the 351st Regimental Headquarters with the news.

"While leading his patrol along the frontier, Van Atten sighted a Yugoslav patrol with whom he and his men had talked before and appeared to be on good terms. Van Atten and two enlisted men dismounted and approached the boundary on foot.

SENT FOR HORSES

"They were seen talking with the Yugoslavs at a distance of 30 to 35 feet. Then they were seen to go forward, while the Yugoslavs pointed rifles at them."

The Army report said the Americans were "forced across the frontier at gunpoint" and continued:

"Shortly after, one of the three men was reported to have been sent back for the three horses. The three captives subsequently were seen from an observation point entering the Yugoslav village of Goriano under armed guard."

Youth Mrs. Loew Aided Seized Again

David C. Amaral, 24, of Carver st., South End, who 25 days ago won probation because of dual leniency pleas by Mrs. Sonya Loew and his wartime chaplain, was arrested today on a charge of illegal sale of marijuana. The thrice-wounded veteran was seized in a Tremont st. restaurant, along with a confederate, after he allegedly passed 15 marijuana cigarets to Sgt. Leo Gannon for $15.

Less than a month ago, Amaral was dramatically freed in municipal court by Judge John G. Brackett after Mrs. Loew, wife of the movie magnate, had come to his aid and promised him a job. He had confessed to breaking into her automobile and stealing a bag of clothing, at the same time missing a case containing $25,000 worth of jewelry.

A stirring court appeal also was delivered by Rev. Samuel Tyler, assistant rector of Trinity Church, and chaplain of the 100th Infantry Division in World War II, to whom Amaral had gone with a confession concerning the clothing theft.

DAVID C. AMARAL

Tyler had advised his former comrade to go to the police and surrender.

STILL HAS FAITH

The Trinity Church assistant declared today he was shocked exceedingly to learn that young Amaral again was in trouble.

"I still have faith in the boy," he said sadly. "I won't give up on him yet. I know he has been traveling with pretty bad companions, but I thought that all that had ended.

"However, I will look over the police report on the matter and then make a decision on whether or not I will try again to help him."

Mrs. Loew was even more forceful in her statement and quite indignant that the youth she had befriended should again be in police toils.

WON'T AID AGAIN

"I certainly will not go to his rescue again," she told reporters at her Milton home.

"When he got probation, my husband gave him a job announcing at his trotting track in Foxboro. He worked there for four nights, but he had such a fine baritone voice that we decided to give him a chance to go on the stage.

"He had been rehearsing for a review scheduled to go on the Loew circuit Oct. 1. As far as I could learn, he was at rehearsal every day."

Arrested with Amaral was Nicholas Asaff, 23, of Waltham st., South End, towhom Sgt. Gannon first appealed to "get me some of that stuff."

According to Gannon, assigned to clean up the marijuana traffic in the South End, Asaff told him to go to a Tremont st. restaurant and everything would be arranged at a price of $1 for each cigaret.

When the sergeant paid off and allegedly got his ciggies, he nabbed Amaral, and Patrolmen Hillary McGunigle and Thomas Riley seized Asaff as he fled the restaurant.

Later, after questioning the pair, a squad of police went to Revere. It was stated that the cigarets were made up in Revere and sold to distributors for 15 cents each.

Ann Hewitt Weds 24-Hour Widower

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 23 (AP)—Heiress Ann Cooper Hewitt is married for the fourth time. She was wed late Saturday to Radio Disc Jockey Frank "Rodeo Roy" Nicholson, whose previous wife's death 24 hours earlier was termed suicide by an overdose of sleeping tablets in a coroner's tentative report.

Justice of the Peace N. Charles Brusatori of nearby San Rafael said he performed the marriage in his home Saturday afternoon, three days after Ann was divorced in Reno by John Whitaker, Nevada mining man.

Coroner John J. Kingston, listing the death of Mrs. Gertrude Nicholson, 37, as suicide in a tentative report, said a formal verdict Friday evening must await a toxologist's laboratory findings.

He said both Nicholson and his bride would be called to attend the inquest Oct. 3.

Ann, heiress to a considerable part of the $10,000,000 fortune left by the late inventor, Peter Cooper Hewitt, made news in 1936 when she sued her mother and two doctors for $500,000 damages on the contention she had been tricked into a sterilization operation. The suit was thrown out of court.

Falmouth Teacher Killed in Crash

MASHPEE, Sept. 23 — Miss Helen Swift, 27, Falmouth grammar school teacher, was killed and her companion, Nino Pola, 25, State st., Sandwich, was injured critically here early today when their convertible coupe crashed two trees off the Route 130 highway.

The teacher's body was hurtled 40 feet. Pola was taken to Cape Cod Hospital in Hyannis, where doctors said little hope was held for his recovery.

Police reported Pola was driving the coupe, which raced out of control, caromed off one tree and crashed headlong into another. The car was demolished.

Miss Swift was the daughter of Mrs. Esther Binder of Glenwood pl., Falmouth. Pola is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Gustavo Pola of Sandwich.

Regrets Aiding Youth Now Held on Drug Charge

Divorcee Fined, Felled by Drugs

Suffering from what officials said was an overdose of drugs, Mrs. Eleanor Simmons, 38, attractive divorcee of Washington st., Jamaica Plain, was reported in critical condition today at City Hospital, where her name is on the danger list.

She was removed to the hospital in a semi-conscious condition from a cafe in Woolsey sq., Jamaica Plain, several hours after she had been fined $100 for assault in a court action involving two other women and the husband of one.

Before lapsing into a coma, she asked that her daughter, Mrs. Janet Gloriosa, be notified.

CHARGED WITH ASSAULT

In the jury waived court action in Suffolk Superior Court, Mrs. Simmons was charged with assault and battery on Mrs. Margaret Botalinski, of the same address and on Mrs. Myrtle Gansenberg of Kent st., Brookline, on June 21 last.

Mrs. Gansenberg said she was in the hallway of Mrs. Simmons' home trailing her husband, Valentine from whom she has been separated.

She said she saw her husband depart with Mrs. Simmons. With the intention of waiting it out until both came back Mrs. Gansenberg said she asked Mrs. Botalinski if she could wait in her apartment and the latter agreed.

BATTLE BREAKS OUT

According to the witness, her husband and Mrs. Simmons returned about 12:30 a. m. Then the battle broke out. The witnesses disagreed on just what occurred, in the court proceeding, which occupied five hours. But Mrs. Gansenberg insisted Mrs. Simmons knocked her down and kicked in two ribs.

Trans-Sea Robot Flight Tribute to Kennedy Memory

By FRANKLIN BANKER

Former AP War Correspondent With the 8th and 9th Air Forces in Europe

PITTSBURGH, Sept. 23 (AP)—The flight of the AAF robot plane from Newfoundland to England pays tribute to the late Lt. Joseph P. Kennedy, Jr., of Boston, son of the former ambassador to England, and other heroes who gave their lives in the recent world war to develop the robot plane.

Hitler dreamed of sending a robot bomb to devaste New York's millions—but his efforts resolved with buzz bombs and rockets dropped on England and the west coast of Europe.

Meanwhile the USAAF was developing a robot bomber to counteract Hitler's V-1 and V-2. In England, battle-worn B-17's and B-24's in 1944 were loaded with tremendous charges of explosives to be dropped on German V-bomb sites.

At that stage, "mother planes" were used to guide the robot planes into the air by radio control

LT. JOSEPH P. KENNEDY, JR.
Helped Develop Robot Plane

—one of the greatest secrets of World War II.

KILLED IN TAKE OFF

Lt. Kennedy—a Navy officer cooperating in the highly dangerous project—was killed in the takeoff of one of these "rone" or robot bombers on a combatt mission.

These planes were developed at a highly secret USAAF base in England. Kennedy, a volunteer, offered to eake one of these "drone" bombers into the air. (Yesterday's Skymaster, one stage advanced, took off by robot control, but in Kennedy's day, human pilots had to do it.)

Kennedy got his Liberator (laden with 21,170 pounds of explosives) safely into the air, but something went wrong—investigators could not deteramine what—and exploded it. Kennedy and his co-pilot, Lt. Wilford J. Wiley of Ft. Worth, Tex., were killed.

They gave their lives to perfect the outstanding advance-scored by the history-making Skymaster Flight from Newfoundland to England.

How 'Big Push' Kept on Course

By JAMES J. STREBIG

Associated Press Aviation Editor

WASHINGTON, Sept. 23 (AP)—The push-button flight of an Air Force C-54 across the North Atlantic may point the way to railroad regularity for airlines and the elimination of human error in the cockpit.

The four-engined Skymaster, known as "The Big Push," flew 3400 miles from Stephenville, N. F., to Brize Norton Airport in England yesterday without a hand on the controls after the starting button was touched.

A crew of nine rode along "just in case," and there were five passengers, including some British observers.

DESCRIBES FLIGHT

An Air Force officer said the flight of "The Big Push" proceeded in this manner:

The control mechanism, which operates 20 different items in the airplane was fully adjusted, the motors were run up for test, and the plane was taxied to the end of the runway and headed for takeoff.

Then the master switch was thrown, after which "not even so much as a little finger was placed by any human being on the mechanism. Automatically, the throttles were pushed to takeoff position and after eight seconds the brakes were released. The plane started down the runway, lifted into the air, and when it reached 800 feet altitude the throttles were retarded to climb position.

The plane then climbed to 9000 feet and the throttles were pulled back to cruise position. At that time also the plane's radio picked up a directional beam from a picket or guide ship about a third of the way across the ocean.

KEPT ON BEAM

An automatic direction finder (known as "ADF") thereupon actuated the controls to keep the plane headed directly toward the ship along the radio beam. When the plane reached the "cone of silence," or dead spot immediately above the ship, the receiver automatically tuned in another frequency and the "ADF" then homed on a second ship farther along the course.

When the second guide ship was reached the radio turned to a third frequency, originating at the British airfield. When the plane reached the cone of silence—actually a part of the instrument landing system (or "ILS")—the radio actuated a set of controls which retarded the throttles, lowered the landing flaps and cracked out the landing gear.

Then the plane homed on the glide path, a sloping beam which is part of the equipment at 100 or more airports in this country, and flew down to the runway. After allowing a certain time for roll following the touchdown of the wheels, the brakes were automatically applied.

The crew, which had done nothing for 10 hours, taxied the plane off the runway.

Quoddy Bidder Plans Factory

Eventual industrialization of Quoddy Village, Eastport, Me., loomed today as L. Grossman & Sons, Inc., Quincy lumber firm, awaited a War Assets Administration decision on its high bid of $105,555 for the government-abandoned $3,000,000 project.

Sidney Grossman, spokesman for the firm, said a can manufacturer was interested in acquiring part of the project, while the Grossman firm plans to establish a branch there as well.

Second highest bidder when the village was placed on the block by government auctioneers was F. J. O'Hara & Sons, Portland, Me., fish dealers, who offered $81,500.

Petkov, Red Foe, Hanged In Bulgaria

SOFIA, Sept. 23 (AP)—Nikola Dimitrov Petkov, 54-year-old peasant leader and foe of the Communist party, was hanged early today in Sofia's central prison on charges of plotting against Bulgaria's Communist-controlled government.

Both the United States and Britain, denouncing his conviction as a miscarriage of justice, had urged the Soviet Union to participate in a big power review of Petkov's case, but the Russians declined on grounds that this would interfere in Bulgaria's internal affairs.

Evidently resigned to death, Petkov, in his prison cell, described his case simply as a prolongation of "what has already happened in Hungary," where the Communists throttled the opposition after charging the existence of a plot against the government.

Petkov as leader of the Agrarian party was accused of a plot against King Boris III, and expelled from Parliament. During the war he was back in the government.

SHE WEEPS OVER HUBBY'S REPORT CARD

LOUISVILLE, Ky., Sept. 23 (AP)—Once it was irate fathers and tearful mothers who called upon Dean J. J. Oppenheimer of the University of Louisville to inquire why Junior was about to flunk out of school.

Today Dean Oppenheimer says he's plagued with weeping wives, worried when hubby brings home a bad report card.

The dean says he's been lucky so far, because wives haven't brought the children along to plead daddy's case. "I'm expecting that almost any day," he added.

Such scenes aren't the rule, he continued, because records show veterans as a group are above average.

Stop UN Row, Save Peace, Lie Pleads

NEW YORK, Sept. 23 (AP)—Trygve Lie, secretary-general of the United Nations, made a direct appeal to the bitterly quarreling big powers today to reconcile the East-West differences which he said were breeding fear and hate throughout the world.

Addressing the General Assembly at the close of its week-long general debate phase, Lie made no direct reference either to Marshall or Russia's Deputy Foreign Minister Andrei Y. Vishinsky, but it was clear his appeal was aimed at them.

"The indispensable condition for peace," Lie told the 55 national delegations, "is that nations with different social systems and different interests shall strive to live and to work together, side by side, in peace.

"This must find expression in political negotiations which show a willingness to compromise. Without such a will, without cooperation and agreement, let me emphasize that no mechanism for the maintenance of international peace and security, however perfect, can be effective."

"It is impossible and intolerable," Lie continued, "to think that these differences should ever be allowed to lead to war. I do not believe there is any nation or any government in the world that does not want to prevent another war.

"The great difficulty lies in the fact that the great powers suspect each other or each others' intentions. It is fear which is the great danger. Fear breeds hate and hate breeds danger."

The veto issue, he declared, is more of a symptom than a cause. He also touched on the admission of new members and demanded the Security Council reconsider the 10 membership applications which failed of approval last month.

Cross-Country Crime Tour Traps Salem Jail Breaker

A youth who has terrorized a score of cities throughout the East today was identified by police at Columbus, O., as James McDonald, 20, who six weeks ago staged a daring break from the Salem Jail. The young Concord Reformatory parolee, who fled Salem with three others Aug. 10, went into spasms of boasting once his identity had been established, declaring he "really had burned up the East."

His story is one of an amazing series of holdups, thefts and burglaries.

McDonald was captured at Columbus when he stepped into his room and the waiting arms of Detective Stacy Hall. He never got a chance to draw a 38-caliber revolver from his pocket.

McDonald went into court at Columbus today charged with burglary, grand larceny and theft of an automobile—but it was doubtful if Salem Jail would see him for many a year to come.

FACING MANY CHARGES

Waiting to claim him were police from Cincinnati, Ashland, Ky.; Pittsburgh, Niagara Falls, Baltimore and still other much smaller communities.

"He's the most callous young fellow I ever have met up with," Detective Hall told the Boston Evening American today.

"After we found a lot of tear gas guns and weapons in his room we had a real bad fellow. But he wouldn't talk and it was two days before a check on fingerprints proved we had your Salem jailbreaker.

"We are going to let Salem know about it today. We've been too busy so far in trying to clean up all the mess he has caused since he beat it from Massachusetts."

Here, Detective Hall disclosed that all came to Columbus with Raymond W. Limauro, 19, of Lynn, another of the four Salem jailbreakers, and that the latter just managed to escape a police trap in Columbus. They believe he is still in hiding in that city.

PAL SHOT

"We got our first line on McDonald and Limauro after Virgil Curry, a 24-year-old Columbus man, was shot up during the chase of a stolen auto in Ashland, Ky., about 100 miles from here," Hall continued.

"Curry broke down and told us that two other fellows who had come from Massachusetts had broke him in and showed him how to steal an automobile.

"We were lucky to get McDonald so easy. He was out when we went to his rooming house. We found a dozen pocketbooks bearing different names . . . apparently he was a pretty good artist at rolling drunks, too . . . and quite a little arsenal.

"He told us he should have smelled a rat because he heard that Curry had been shot up and captured.

"But he didn't do any real talking until I faced him with his fingerprints. Then he did a little boasting.

"We know he stole a machine here, another in Pittsburgh, committed a number of holdups in Cincinnati and those pocketbooks he had belong to people from all over the east."

Hall further revealed that McDonald and Limauro are wanted for a $125 theft in which they allegedly smashed in a plate glass window and robbed a cash register.

CASH REGISTER THEFT

He also disclosed that McDonald had gotten a job as a magazine solicitor since he arrived in Columbus and that Limauro was putting up a good front by working days as a drug store clerk. When arrested, McDonald had only $1 in his pockets.

McDonald, Limauro, Richard Z. Wysocki, 20, of Salem, and Joseph Bowers, 32, of Salem, all fled Salem jail at breakfast time after overpowering guards, taking keys and a gun and escaping in a guard's automobile.

Wysocki was recaptured a few days later but no trace of the remaining trio was found.

Rabbi Korff Resumes His Fast in Paris

Rabbi Baruch D. Korff, held by the French government for an alleged plot to bomb London with leaflets and home-made explosives, was back on his hunger strike today, according to an announcement from the office of his father, Grand Rabbi Jacob I. Korff, Woodrow ave., Dorchester.

The father, who had successfully persuaded his son to break off his first hunger strike, said a high British official was involved in his son's resumption of his fast.

The situation was aggravated, the announcement stated, because the State Department, twice appealed to for assistance by the grand rabbi, has as yet failed to reply.

The young rabbi, exposted by a young American flier, had been expecting his release momentarily until last Friday when the high British official suddenly appeared in Paris.

Simonds Kin Map Fight For Estate

Frederick T. Doyle, first assistant district attorney of Suffolk County, today took over as special administrator of the $250,000 estate of Mrs. Virginia Simonds of Prince st., Jamaica Plain, who fell to death from a honeymoon suite in a New York hotel only two days after marrying Charles B. Porter.

Doyle was appointed by Judge John V. Mahoney who declined to name Porter as administrator and also refused a request by the Old Colony Trust Co. for similar trusteeship.

The justice said he was taking the action since a controversy over the estate seemed unavoidable.

Seeking to block Porter's claim to the estate, four children of Daniel Simonds, a stepson of Mrs. Simonds, are contesting the validity of Porter's divorce from Mrs. Gertrude E. Porter of Mt. Vernon, N. Y. They contend Porter and Mrs. Simonds were married before his decree became absolute.

The will of Mrs. Simonds, second wife and widow of Alvin T. Simonds, millionaire Back Bay industrialist, failed to mention her two-day bridegroom. It left the residue of her estate to the children, Elizabeth S., Daniel, III, Charles and Holly Simonds, after charitable bequests totaling $10,000, and bequests of $1500 each to four "faithful employes."

LONDON, Sept. 23 (INS)—Six thousand miners in nine coal mines of the Lanarkshire County of Scotland began a "wildcat" strike today amid mounting fears that the walkouts may spread.

Housing Authority Slips on Vet Rules

The Boston Housing Authority today found it had overlooked setting eligibility requirements and rental schedules for the Mattapan veterans' housing project where 20 two-family units will be ready for occupancy next month.

As the members of the authority hastily conferred on the problems, John Carroll, chairman, announced application blanks will be available within the next few days at the authority's office, 10 Postoffice sq. The blanks will be good for applications for any of the 1000 apartments planned in the city's $20,000,000 veterans' housing program.

The authority's early headaches in letting contracts for construction of the units and obtaining building materials were expected to be overshadowed by the ticklish problem of selecting the 1000 tenants from an expected 5000 applications.

In the past few months, said Carroll, 1600 veterans recorded their names at the authority's office as unofficial applicants.

The 20 units to be ready for occupancy next month are in River st., near Mattapan sq. They are two to three weeks behind schedule because of labor and material shortages.

Begun last April by Construction Units, Inc., awarded the program's first contract, the units were to be ready this Friday under pain of a penalty for failure. The penalty, however, is not expected to invoked.

Bids for three more projects in the program, bringing the total to date to 363 units, will be opened next week. The projects include 30 additional two-family houses in River st., six at Sawyer ave. and Downer st., Dorchester, and five at Tilleston and Windsor sts., Mattapan.

Contracts for three other units, which would hike the total to 417 apartments, will be advertised before the week is out. They call for the construction of 30 to 38 two-family houses in Hyde Park near the Milton line, 30 in the Hawthorne st. area of Readville and 17 in River st., Mattapan.

Mayor Urges Changes in Law To Further State Aid in Housing

Asserting Boston may lose as much a s one-third of the $20,000,000 already authorized for permanent housing, Mayor Hynes ur ged a legislative commission today to recommend changes in the law which would give ad ditional state aid to Boston and other communities.

Speaking before the special commission investigating traffic, housing, recreational and lighting problems in Boston, the mayor declared Boston now was doing all in its power to relieve the housing shortage, but that its best was not enough.

As a first step, he said, the commission should recommend to the Legislature that it memoralize Congress for enactment of either the Taft-Ellender-Wagner housing act or some measure of a similar nature.

He also plumped for changes in the present State's veterans' housing law, particularly the section which provides that the entire financial burden of providing housing rest on the municipalities.

"Only when cities and towns have disposed of all the houses constructed and operated by them," he said, "does the Commonwealth reimburse them to the extent of one-half the loss incurred. And there is the stipulation that this reimbursement cannot exceed one-tenth of the tofal expenditure by the municipality."

He suggested that the State, beginning next year, make $1,600,000 available annually to cities and towns for a 10-year period.

Use of this money from the Veterans Service Fund, he said, would encourage immediate production of housing and would involve no more funds than Gove. Bradford had stated would be available from that source for reimbursing communities under the State Housing Act.

He asserted this would result in the starting of $80,000,000 worth of housing by municipalities during the next year.

Hynes also recommended the commission propose to the Legislature that it amend the law to permit sale of houses constructed by municipalities. The present law requires they be sold at the of five years but Hynes felt municipalities should be permitted to sell them immediately at cost, wherever possible.

"There are two strong reasons for that amendment," he said. "First, the money could be put back into a revolving fund for construction of additional dwellings, if needed. Secondly, we have a responsibility to keep the city's financial loss at the lowest possible point.

"We don't know what the real estate market will be five years from now, but the probability is that one and two-family houses will not bring the prices they command today.

"I believe it is sound to specify cities should not retain these dwellings indefinitely. Btu it seems that if the city is able to sell them immediately at cost and without a loss, it should be permitted to do so and the law should be changed to include that provision."

He said the city was going ahead with the long-delayed Cathedral housing propect in the South End but he was not sure yet whether it would be built as a federal low cost housing under the McCarthy act or as a veteran housing project under the State housing law.

Most of the funds would be contributed by the government, if it was built as a federal project, he said. In the even that it was constructed for veteran housing, he added, the five-year sale requirement would hold true. He urged the commission to recommend exemption of the pripect from the five-year sale requirement in that case.

"The blunt fact of the matter," he said, "is that the city is doing as much as it possibly can afford to do, possibly even more than it can afford from a financial standpoint.

"In all, the expenditure of some $20,000,000 for permanent housing has been authorized with the prospect that the city's ultimate financial loss may amount to as much as one-third of that sum. I am not overstating the situation when I say Boston cannot afford to absorb the bulk of that loss."

Obesity Danger Told in Article

Most authorities agree that anyone who is 10 or 15 per cent overweight should not go merrily on eating everything his or her heart desires. The next step may be dangerous obesity, which means overweight of 25 per cent or more.

Obesity, if allowed to go uncorrected or uncontrolled, has shortened the lives of thousands of men and women by making them victims of heart disease, diabetes, liver and kidney ailments, and other serious disorders.

Valuable advice on moderate eating and correcting an overweight condition, together with a sample diet to prevent obesity, will be given in the article, "Eating Can Kill You," to be published in next Sunday's American Weekly magazine issued with the Boston Sunday Advertiser.

CANINE FILM FANS

LOS ANGELES, Sept. 23 (AP)—Pat and Gunner, Irish setters who recently inherited $30,000, preferred Mickey Mouse and other cartoon characters when they went to the movies with their late master and benefactor, Carleton R. Bainridge, a witness testified.

Edward G. Lamel, their next-door neighbor, said Bainbridge often mentioned the dogs' taste in films.

The will is being contested by Sherman A. Bainbridge, a brother.

Wycoff Westover, attorney for the dogs' estate, stated without offer of proof that although the dogs talk, they do not speak English.

Commented Superior Judge Charles S. Burnell:

"I asked my dog if he'd like to sit in on this case, but he said he wasn't interested."

Worcester Halts Sex Hygiene Film

WORCESTER, Sept. 23 — Exhibitors of "Mom and Dad," a movie on sex hygiene, today retained counsel to determine their rights after Mayor Charles E. Sullivan and members of the license board walked into The Playhouse here and closed the opening performance.

The mayor ordered the show stopped on the grounds the exhibitors did not have a license and then added that no license would be granted until he and the license board had been given a preview of the picture.

Advertising portrayed the picture as dealing "frankly with a subject rarely spoken of above a whisper."

ATOM DEFENSE?

MEXICO CITY, Sept. 23 (INS)—The Mexican newspaper Novedades claimed without confirmation that a defense has been found against atomic bombs which will make "the Americas immune" to atomic attack.

The newspaper, under big headlines, said source for the report is an unidentified Mexican close to the Atomic Energy Committee in the U. S.

He was quoted as having declared that atomic bombs may now be detected at a distance of 30 miles and could be exploded before hitting the target "by means of nuclear energy projected in a beam."

There was no confirmation of the report in any official quarters.

Cities, Towns Battle Move To Cut Old Colony Service

Vigorous opposition flared today in official and commuter circles against the announced intention of the New Haven R. R. to isolate Taunton and other surburban communities by discontinuing passenger service now provided by the Old Colony division.

Maintaining that continued operation of the service would mean an annual loss of more than $154,000, the New Haven has petitioned the State Public Utilities Commission for authority to abandon passenger service between Taunton and Fall River, Canton Junction and North Easton, Needham Junction and West Medway, and North Abington and West Hanover.

Mayor John F. Parker of Taunton said he was greatly disturbed over the news and would take the matter up with the council at its next meeting.

Plans were under way to oppose the move when the citizens will have a chance to voice their opinions at the public hearing on the petition, for which no date has yet been set.

Several thousand other commuters in a dozen communities affected by the proposed abandonment are mobilizing to protest the petition.

So. Boston Heater Blast Perils 5

A mother and her four children escaped injury today when a tankless hot water heater exploded in the basement of a cottage house in East Fifth st., South Boston. The blast wrecked the cellar, blew out windows and shook a clock and pictures from walls, causing damage estimated by Acting Dist. Fire Chief James McFadden at $1000.

Mrs. Beatrice Klemm was awakened by the roar. Her husband, Gustave, had just left for work in his bakery. The children, Carl, 13, Richard, 11, and Gloria and Maria, 9-year-old twins, were getting ready for school when the explosion shook the house.

Apparatus was called but there was no fire. The blast blew the newly-installed heater from its foundation and threw it against a 275-gallon oil tank.

By George E. Sokolsky

THE NATIONAL BROADCASTING COMPANY has reached the conclusion that a heavy diet of murder for children is not particularly beneficial to them, their parents or the country in which they live. They will postpone murder until 9:30 p. m., after Jan. 1.

Children interested in murder may have their fill of it until the new schedule goes into effect, although it is difficult to understand why if murder on the radio put up their refrigerator and make acid on Jan. 1, it is not carbolic acid today.

Manwhile, it seems that Columbia, Mutual and American disagree with the NBC. They, it would appear, believe that murder is good for children at any time of the day or night, along with chewing gum, breakfast foods, and exterminators of body odors.

That is why so many children put all their forefinger and make a noise like a machine gun. It is extremely stimulating to the young mind to make a noise like a machine gun.

How often have I listened to the most enlightening conversations, lofty in tone and mood, on the relative merits of "The Green Hornet" and "The Falcon," or whether "Gang Busters" is more exciting than "Murder is My Hobby."

And murder has become a hobby if a small boy does it to prove that he is not a sissy.

THE NETWORKS will undoubtedly debate the educational value of murder during the next few months and maybe another vice-president will lose his job, but it would be preferable if this subject were seriously discussed by parents, educators and clergymen who have a direct concern with the morals of their charges and who knew that the radio cannot be suppressed in the home without creating such a rumpus as many parents seek to dodge.

If wickedness is to be kept from the child until it has, at any rate, passed out of puberty and to the verge of discretion—murder, foul, brutal murder, often related in a nonchalent, calm manner, as though to the manner born—such recitals of murder must be kept from the home at the source of supply.

One of the officials of a radio network—does it matter which?—asked why soap operas are not kept from the ears of children? I ask you, why not? That was a very good question, probably spoken from the heart.

If one listened only to the radio, say for a week, he could easily convince himself that in the United States murder is a usual occurrence, happening at half-hour intervals; that most marriages are utter failures; that while crime does not pay, it nevertheless is extremely interesting, that there is always a third wheel to every chariot—meaning each family; that the greatest concern of wise women is to help young ladies out of scrapes with married men.

ON A SUNDAY AFTERNOON, during the winter, crime comes on early, on the assumption I suppose, that no one goes to church any more, certainly not to vespers.

What a beautiful family picture; mother is reading a 25-cent book on murder; father is listening to one murder on a network and John and Jane to another. Thus the Sabbath is devoted to holy thoughts and polite doings, particularly when some raucous, eerie laugh comes into the room.

In the long run, the NBC will be proved right. For parents have been discussing this question for a long time, particularly at 2 a. m. when they are awakened by a screaming child who has just been dreaming that "they're gonna get me."

I once threatened to solve this problem in my own home by throwing every radio out of the window. But a child told me that "the law would get me" for that. I realized that I was a quarter of a century too late.

Apparently there is too little imagination in radio management and writing.

Anti-Vivisection Drive Arranged

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 23—A renewed effort to secure federal legislation banning vivisection was predicted today by Rep. John Phillips (R.) of California.

Phillips declared a concerted attempt will be made to have the Lempke Anti-Vivisection Bill reported favorably upon by the House Judiciary Committee, when Congress reconvenes in January.

Prospects for the bill's passage, once it reaches the floor, are favorable, the congressman asserted.

"Opposition against the barbaric cruelty to living animals performed under the thin guise of scientific research has mounted appreciably within the past year," Phillips declared.

While Congress can enact legislation prohibiting vivisection only in the District of Columbia, such action, Phillips said, would provide a toehold for the humane forces seeking to abolish animal torture throughout the nation.

McCormack Sees Soviet Disturbed

The bitter tirade by Andrei Vishinsky against the United States is a certain sign that "all is not well behind the iron curtain," declared Cong. John W. McCormack in a speech before Pere Marquette Council Knights of Columbus.

McCormack, Democratic House leader, said the Soviet deputy foreign minister's charge of "warmongering" against the U. S. was the perfect proof that Russia was greatly disturbed over the way things were going in their supposed European orbit.

"Vishinsky's remarks were part of a prepared statement," McCormack added, "and are all the more significant because it is the first time that a Russian spokesman, and its first diplomat, has indicated a lack of confidence. If the Russians were confident of their position, Vishinsky need never have made such a speech."

4 Win Top Prizes In Tip Contest

A series of tips on important stories made red-hot competition in last week's $50 Record-American-Advertiser News Tip Contest with four tipsters winning awards of $5 each.

The four stories rated "tops" by the News Tip Editor concerned a Stoneham automobile crash in which three women were killed; a dramatic break by three state prison convicts, radio messages on the Florida hurricane and the battle of Everett police with a former officer who ran amok with a gun, threatening members of his family and his captors with death.

Awards of $3 each were won by tips on a prospective bride and bridegroom digging for her lost engagement ring and a freak accident in which a telephone company lineman escaped injury when an automobile crashed into the pole on which he was working and then struck a tree, still without causing any casualty.

Five $2 awards and fourteen $1 awards completed the weekly distribution of $50 in prize awards to alert "amateur reporters" who flashed the News Tip Editor at LIBerty 4000 with information on interesting news and pictures.

War Contracts Under New Probe

WASHINGTON, Sept. 23—Just what companies got just how much in the final settlement of war contracts will be the subject of a new investigation by the Brewster committee.

The investigation will get under way within two weeks.

Officials of the war contracts price adjustment board will probably be among the witnesses called, the Hearst newspapers learned today.

The committee will scan final payments on war contracts totaling billions of dollars, with a view to determining the amount of taxes, the profits and fees obtained by contractors, and the capital invested by contractors and the government in providing plants.

Gov. Warren Backs Legion Stand on Training

Special to the Boston Evening American

LOS ANGELES, Sept. 23—From one of their own—Gov. Earl Warren—California legionnaires heard an all-out indorsement of universal military training.

Addressing the first business session of the 29th annual state convention in Shrine Auditorium, the state's chief executive declared:

"Once we have fully enlisted the support of the people in the principles of national preparedness which the American Legion is advocating, and including an adequate national defense with universal military training, we can face the future with full confidence."

Previously the 5000 delegates listened intently while Dept. Com. Richard H. Chamberlain described training for the youth of the nation as the "Legion's No. 1 program" and pledged full support of California's 170,000 members to National Com. James F. O'Neil and other leaders.

"We have fought for 27 years for preparedness and military training, and 1948 may be the year that our hopes are realized if Congress acts and considers the wishes of the majority of our citizens," Chamberlain said.

R. Adm. Oscar C. Badger, commandant of the 11th Naval District, hero of two wars and winner of the Congressional Medal of Honor, Maj. Gen. Willis H. Hale, commanding the 4th Air Force, and other speakers stressed the need for national preparedness.

"Who shall live and who shall die"—

FOR THE THIRD NEW YEAR since their "liberation" the Jews of Europe are gathering in shattered synagogues . . . in bleak DP camps . . . in open fields . . . wherever there is room for men to stand before their God . . . and raising their voices in the age-old Yom Kippur prayer:

"Who Shall Live and Who Shall Die?"

Last year, and the year before, we in America, through the United Jewish Appeal, gave an answer of life and hope to the million and a half surviving Jews of Europe.

This year, thanks to the recommendation of the United Nations Special Committee on Palestine, there is new hope for a permanent solution of the Jews of Europe. But between that hope and the final solution, there is a gap which must be filled.

Those who are homeless must be provided with shelter against the coming winter; they must be clothed and fed; they must have medicines; they must be re-trained for a new life, helped to help themselves become self-supporting, self-respecting human beings again.

And there are the children, too. Tens of thousands of orphaned youngsters who deserve a decent start in life; thousands of newly-born infants who have no memory of the concentration camps and who can, with our help, grow up to lead normal, healthy lives.

Can we afford to fail these people . . . deny these children their birthright?

We cannot, we must not fail. In this fateful year, we must all work harder . . . and when we are called upon to contribute, we must give much more than the record-breaking sums we gave last year. We have not yet provided sufficient funds for the gigantic job to be done. Give and Work. Work and Give.

"WHO SHALL LIVE AND WHO SHALL DIE?" YOU WILL DECIDE.

Even in the sometimes stilted language used by economists, it is easy to understand why Beverly's multi-million-dollar experiment in decentralized shopping—the huge North Shore center—is attracting the attention of retail men, technologists, architects and city planners the nation over.

The record shows it's all a matter of finding a place to park. For instance:

During the 1930's, downtown Boston lost more than $80,000,000 in retail sales. During that same decade, suburban Boston gained $30,000,000 in retail sales.

Furthermore, a few of the key merchants who did a little experimenting in the suburbs found that business is both bigger and more economic per square foot in the hinterlands!

WOMEN ON WHEELS

"The reason," according to Huston Rawls, president of the company which is building the North Shore center and surveying jammed metropolitan areas across the country for more such super-shopping centers, "is simply that women are on wheels—and women do the shopping."

The boys bought more than 60 acres of land to insure more parking space "than the Christmas rush will ever require." Rawls said they estimated it after years of surveys in metropolitan areas.

Once within the ultra-modern center the shopper will find a completely integrated community of retail service and entertainment facilities dominated by two huge circular department stores.

From the moment she leaves the car and steps within this miniature futuristic city, the shopper will not be exposed to the elements until she is ready to leave. All sidewalks are covered, and she can even cross the central parkway safely sheltered from the sun and the rain.

PARK CHILDREN

She can first stop off at the nursery-playground next door and leave junior and the baby in competent, efficient care.

At the opposite end of the semi-rectangular center from the department stores she will find the entertainment and service section, having everything from bowling alleys to a theater seating 1500.

In addition to the necessities provided by the usual neighborhood shopping center, she'll be able to buy household furnishings, family clothing, general merchandise, luxuries, jewelry and all of those so-called non-essentials which comprise 65 per cent of national retail shopping sales. Further, she'll be able to get them on the same competitive price scale as in the metropolitan stores.

Shopping finished, she can leave her purchases, take the children to lunch at the big air-conditioned restaurant and then either go with them to the movies or let them go while she visits the recreation area for a sip-and-gossip session with the gals or even to bowl a few strings.

Then back to meet the kids, have her purchases brought out to one of the many covered gateways, drive the car up, pick them up—and so on home without being caught in any traffic jams.

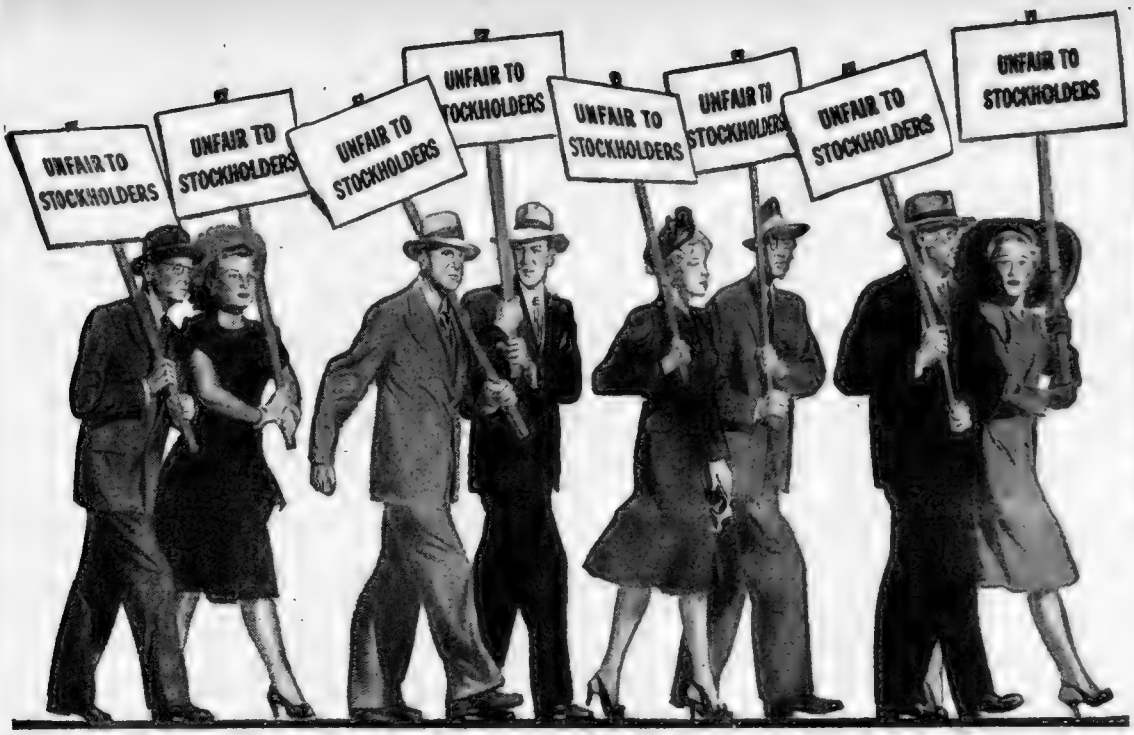
IT'S OUR WAY OF MAKING FRIENDS



STOCKHOLDERS IN OTHER BUSINESS HAVE A STAKE ALSO IN RAILROADS

Stockholders of all kinds of business should be interested in fair treatment for railroad stockholders.

Freight rates are too low to meet the mounting costs of railroad operation and allow railroad stockholders a fair return on their investments. If railroad stockholders are squeezed out—railroad operation would fall on the Government. Under Government operation, taxes to support the railroads would fall principally upon other corporations—owned, in turn, by their stockholders.

In other words, stockholders everywhere would be penalized.

Railroads should be treated equitably and given increased freight rates to meet increased costs and allow railroad stockholders a fair return.

The cost of materials and supplies necessary to railroad operation has increased 87% since 1939; wages and wage taxes are up about 70%. Freight rate increases have produced only 15% additional revenue for hauling the average ton of freight one mile. An increase in freight rates is needed. In the interest of everyone —employes included—freight rates should be adjusted promptly to the higher costs of performing transportation.

What the railroads desire is just and reasonable rates, that in meeting their responsibility to the public in furnishing adequate and efficient transportation service at the lowest cost consistent, they be allowed to earn sufficient revenues to enable the railroads, under honest and economical and efficient management, to provide the public with the service it desires.

BOSTON EVENING AMERICAN, TUES., SEPT. 23, 1947

VISHINSKY'S SPEECH

THE VISHINSKY SPEECH before the United Nations assembly, for all its ranting venom against the United States, served one useful purpose in the interest of the United States by dispelling the last vestige of the illusion concerning Russian intentions with which the American people have so long been deceived and have in some degree deceived themselves.

The Russian government, and particularly the Russian people, have long been assiduously and artfully represented to the American people—often by American leaders of very high authority and responsibility—as having an amiable and even affectionate opinion regarding the United States, suggesting that our mistrust of her intentions reflected a regrettable moral deficiency in our own national character.

The truth of the matter, however, as Mr. Vishinsky has now acknowledged in a sudden frenzy of anger and frustration, is that the viewpoints of Russia and the United States ARE UTTERLY IRRECONCILABLE and the pretense that they have anything in common has always been a SHAM.

Russia and the United States are not able to work together in the United Nations organization, BECAUSE THEY ARE NOT WORKING FOR THE SAME THINGS.

ANY SORT of an alliance between Russia and the United States is an unworkable arrangement and an entirely unnatural association.

They have not merely contrasting, but conflicting concepts of international relationships.

Not only are they constantly at cross purposes as to method and procedure BUT THEY ARE WHOLLY OPPOSED IN THEIR BASIC MORAL AND SPIRITUAL CONCEPTS.

The wartime association, true enough, was an efficient arrangement and probably a fortuitous one, although American industrial productivity accounted for its efficiency, as Premier Stalin once freely admitted.

As to the morality of the association insofar as Russia's participation was concerned, it was not a case of a nation of high ideals opposing one of low principles, since Russia and Germany were allies in the early part of the war and joined forces in the defeat and dismemberment of Poland.

Their later antagonism was simply a falling out among thieves.

So the Russians went into the war in the beginning WITH AN UTTERLY IMMORAL PURPOSE, conducted it throughout with immoral intent, and has ever since pursued an immoral policy of self-aggrandizement at the expense of her enemies, the neutral nations and her own allies.

This is the design of international relationship which Russia insists upon implementing through the United Nations, and very evidently insists upon acceptance as a condition of her continued membership.

That is, bluntly, too big a price, as Secretary of State Marshall warned the United Nations assembly and as all the other nations of the world except Russia and her satellites agree.

MR. VISHINSKY has even "upped" the price in a most arrogant and arbitrary manner.

He has virtually suggested that a further condition of keeping Russia in the United Nations will be the imposition of a gag on the American press and radio, preventing free support of American interests in American mediums of information—although he says nothing about suppressing the freedom of expression enjoyed by Russia's apologists and propagandists in this country.

On one score, and one only, Mr. Vishinsky is absolutely right.

THERE SURELY MUST BE A SHOWDOWN BETWEEN THE RUSSIAN AND AMERICAN CONCEPTS OF INTERNATIONAL MORALITY IN THE UNITED NATIONS.

The ability of that organization to function in the true interests of world peace is the sole issue involved.

Begone ambition, riches, toys,
And splendid cares and guilty joys;
Give me a book, a friend, a glass,
And a sweet, laughter-loving lass.

—THOMPSON.

IN ADVISING A young friend on the subject of marriage, Thackeray particularly emphasized the importance of acquiring a girl with a sense of humor. "A woman without a laugh in her is the greatest bore in existence," said he.

STOGIE DEPARTMENT: Either Ethel Merman or Lillian Roth introduced the ditty "Give Me Liberty or Give Me Love." That's what I said. A Bostonian claims Claudette Colbert introduced this song in a film in which Maurice Chevalier was starred. Who wins the stogie?

Claudette Colbert

CONSTRUCTIVE CRITICISM: That nasty crack, "Isn't that just like a woman," which has been hurled at feminine autoists for some time past, may have been a bit of much needed constructive criticism. Women formerly were not so good as auto skippers. Recent research proves that generally speaking women are now better drivers than men. This includes both commercial and passenger vehicles. During the war women who drove trucks handled them much more skilfully than male truck drivers.

A BOSTONIAN named Frank Liberty is said to have discovered a method of removing tattoo marks. So if you know any sailor who has "Mary loves John" tattooed on his chest and he is married, too, or thinking of marrying a girl named Lillian or Louise or Mabel tell him he may be able to have the evidence of his previous romance removed.

ASKING: Queries from clients. Q—Now you have a reader in St. Augustine, Fla., which is 382 years old, making it the nation's oldest city. How old is Brooklyn? A—Brooklyn is 306 years old, having been founded in 1642. Is named after Breuckelen, a town in Holland. Q—Do you remember Dave Marion? A—I assume you are referring to the burlesque comedian, who played "Snuffy the Cabman." Certainly I remember him. I also remember Lew Kelly and "Sliding Billy" Watson. Q—I claim "Scarface," featuring Paul Muni, was the first of the gangster films. How about it? A—The first gangster film was produced long before "Scarface." It was "Fool's First," directed and produced by Marshall Neilan around 1920. The second gangster film was "That Royal Girl," produced by D. W. Griffith around 1922.

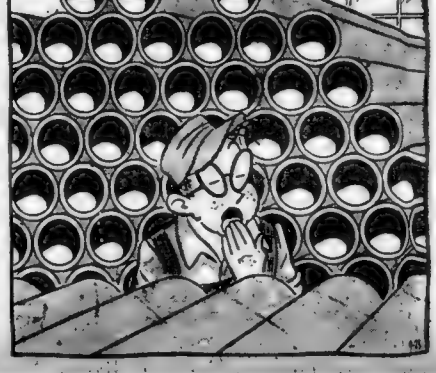
ANKLES: An ankle contest was recently held in London. Thirty women behind a curtain each extended an ankle through a hole for the judges to view. The winner, of course, to be the female with the shapliest ankle. The husband of the winner was surprised when his wife's triumph was announced. He said he had not recognized his wife's ankle. Nor, though he had been married for 15 years, had he realized his wife had such a beautiful ankle. What do you think of a husband like that? I trust, sir, you would on a similar occasion be able to recognize your wife's cute little ankle.

UNIQUE SHOP: Seven brothers, all barbers, all World War II veterans, all working in the same shop, which they own as partners. That is the Casper brothers of Hollywood, Cal. Business has been so brisk the Casper boys have had to put on more barbers. The extra tonsorialists are also veterans of World War II. So if it isn't an all brother shop, it certainly is an all World War II veteran shop.

SLEEP: Note with interest "Bobo" Newsom, the Yankee pitcher, never arises before noon. "Bobo" has lasted a long time in the majors. So he must know what is good for his physical well being. Eight hours is supposed to be the length of time everybody should sleep daily. But research indicates that is too much for some people and not enough for others. We should all try to ascertain just how much sleep we need. I get about eight hours sleep nightly. Maybe I should have 10.

SURE-FIRE: It has been said a book about Abraham Lincoln, a doctor or a dog never fails to be a good seller. It now seems a novel about an older woman falling in love with and marrying a much younger man should be added to that "surefire" list. The most recent of the latter type of novel to be a smash hit is "Return to Night," by Mary Renault, which won a $150,000 prize offered by Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer. The novel deals with the love story of a 34-year-old woman doctor and a man 10 years her junior.

GHASTLY IDEA: A Californian says she attended a child's funeral in which the pall-bearers were six little girls. A ghastly idea in my opinion. The death of a child is tragic enough without impressing it so strongly on the minds of other children.



FAIR ENOUGH

By WESTBROOK PEGLER

Copyright, 1947, by King Features Syndicate

NEW YORK, Sept. 23—I was telling you that Robert Stripling, the chief investigator of the old Dies Committee and now chief investigator for the Thomas Committee, finally was shanghaled into the Army.

Westbrook Pegler

He was the father of a child born before Pearl Harbor and surely was not regarded as a military asset because he put in more than a year as a yardbird, picking up butts and wrappers.

For about four months in the summer and fall of 1944 it had been almost impossible to give a man to the Army because Roosevelt was easing the pressure on the great American home in anticipation of the election.

The draft boards manned the rifle slits and drove them off.

After election, this changed. Recruiting and drafting business picked up; rationing tightened and there was a shell shortage in France, soon after Roosevelt had sung his melodious song of military abundance.

THE DRAFTING of Mr. Stripling was special political business. All the Washington radicals hated him and two regular national broadcasts, done in the guise of news on Sunday nights, clamored at his draft board to fetch him.

When they took him as a draftee he couldn't even catch on with an outfit for about a year. He was an orphan soldier in the Army of his native land.

When the old man died, Stripling was made a master sergeant and set to teaching a class in subversive activities.

Herbert Hoover was invited to the White House.

SOME PEOPLE still believe Eleanor was always sincere and kind. But not all people. Some others have caught that icy glint.

Stripling had put himself in a dangerous position. Those bigots of the Roosevelt S. S. were restrained only by the fact that our people had resisted better than the Germans opposed Hitler.

Eleanor the Great was trying to build up her own youth movement. The Nazis had their Hitler youth, including girls, and the Italians had their groups.

Eleanor invited some young free-loaders to the White House and to her homes and then one day she showed up at a hearing of the Dies Committee to give aid and comfort to Joe Lash.

BACK IN 1939, Jerry Voorhis, a California New Deal Congressman who is not a bolo but very gullible, had some business at the White House.

Passing the Lincoln bedroom, Voorhis saw Joe Cadden and Abbott Simon, professionals in the youth racket, as you might say, at home in the Great Emancipator's old private chamber.

VOORHIS BEGGED the rest of the boys on the Dies Committee to go easy on the American Youth Congress, because Eleanor had asked him to persuade them not to call it a Communist front.

Like dummies, they pulled a punch for her and a few months later the outfit held a convention in Washington and booed her old gent when he said Communism was dictatorship, too. Stalin and Hitler were allies then.

That Cadden, who was in Lincoln's bedroom as a guest, recently turned up in the Civil Rights Congress.

Lash had caught on as Eleanor fair-haired boy. She almost adopted the guy. When she took her joyride to the Pacific she called on Joe in some comfortable place where he was stationed.

BEFORE THAT, Eleanor had planted Lash in the Office of Civilian Defense with Mayris Chaney, dancer from California, and Melvyn Douglas of the movies.

The O. C. D. commandeered a whole big apartment house on duPont place and kicked the tenants out, but pretty soon it got just too silly even for the U. S. A. under Eleanor and was disbanded.

All this time a lot of politics was going to get Lash a commission in Navy Intelligence. The Navy said nothing doing until he got a clearance from the Dies Committee . . . Then one day Stripling got a command to come and see her majesty at the White House.

He refused on the ground that he had no authority to speak for the committee. That was practically suicide. Then Dies got an invitation to lunch and, like a sucker, he fell for that First Lady business.

Hollywood

By Louella O. Parsons

HOLLYWOOD, Sept. 23—Barbara Bel Geddes certainly proved herself a fine actress in "The Long Night," a somber, heavy drama. Then she was put into "I Remember Mama," which has both drama and bright comedy. Now Barbara has asked that she have a light story, and so she's been given "Pittsburgh Escapade," in which she will co-star with Guy Madison.

Barbara Bel Geddes

Lionel Houser had the Bel Geddes girl in mind when he wrote "Pittsburgh Escapade," and naturally, Richard Berger, the R. K. O. producer, is delighted at getting her.

Speaking of Guy Madison, he's been carrying a torch a mile high for Gail Russell, and I wouldn't be too surprised if they made up. But, for the time being, they are listening to their elders and not seeing each other, to find out if some of those hectic battles they had can be averted in the future.

I SUPPOSE if Arlene Frances hadn't married Martin Gabel, a Hollywood director, she would have continued turning down movie roles. When she was Mrs. Neil Agnew, the wife of the Selznick executive, she wouldn't consider leaving the New York stage, but now that Gabel is here, she has signed with her old friend, Chester Erskine, for a featured part in "All My Sons."

Gabel, by the way, has just finished "Lost Moment," starring Susan Hayward and Robert Cummings, and now Universal-International is asking for a repeat performance for Susie and Bob in "Great Snow," which Nunnally Johnson produces next summer.

ROBERT DONAT has either gone, or will go very soon to a sanitorium in Switzerland, where he will try to find relief from chronic asthma and bronchitis. He had to bow out of "Precious Bane," which he was to make for J. Arthur Rank, because of that illness.

It's interesting that David Farrar, whom some British writers name as the successor to James Mason, steps into the Donat role.

Ingrid Bergman was so taken with "Precious Bane," that she bought it first and then sold it to Paul Soskin when it was apparent she had too many commitments to make it. He is producing it for Rank.

WHEN Dana Andrews is promised a vacation, he takes it, and believe me, 20th found out that Dana isn't kidding. They made plans to send the "Deep Water" company, formerly titled "Spoonhandle," to Maine. Dana, who has the starring role, notified the studio that if the company left, it would be without him because he still had two more weeks of the six weeks vacation he was promised before the start of "Daisy Kenyon."

So, at this writing, Mr. Andrews may be found somewhere near Seattle, where he went on a motor trip.

P.S. The "Deep Water" company remains in Hollywood until Dana gets back.

CHATTER IN HOLLYWOOD: Johnny Meyer writes that he and Janet Thomas may not get married until they return to America.

"We tried to get married both in Italy and France," said Johnny, "But bans must be posted from two to six months.

"Cannes is just as it was in pre-war Europe days. The night we were there Ann and Jack Warner, Countess di Frasso, The Duke and Duchess of Windsor, Doris Duke and her new husband, Barbara Hutton and bridegroom, Stewart Grainger, the British star; Freddy McEvoy, Alex D'Arcy, Eleanor Parker and Bert Friedlob were all round the baccarat table. But, the most surprising thing was Greta Garbo, who joined the players."

CONNIE BOSWELL and Susan Peters, two girls who haven't let their wheelchairs stand in the way of their careers, have been talking over making Connie's life story.

The plan is for Connie to duh in the songs for Susan, just the way Al Jolson did for Larry Parks.

Already Susan has taken an option on Nellie Revell's book, "Right Off the Chest," and she will do that too. By the way, I received a long letter from Nellie enclosing a Christmas telegram I sent her in 1924. Nellie says she has kept it all these years. She mentioned she still goes to the fights every Friday night and the races on Saturday, which is more than those of us, able to get around, feel like doing.

THE DEATH of an old friend is always a shock and a sadness. Harry Carey was one of the first people I knew when I came to Hollywood. He and Olive were so kind to me, and I have thought so many times of those early days. Harry was one of the finest men I ever knew and such a good actor.

His biggest role was in "Trader Horn," and then recently he was so happy when he was given one of the important parts in "Sea of Grass" and "Duel in The Sun."

He and Olive had been married so many years, and so happily, and both of them always have been a credit to this town where there are too many marital breakups.

SNAPSHOTS OF HOLLYWOOD collected at random: Betty Hensel and Maury Carr, former attorney, at a table for two at the Bel-Air Hotel. . . Charles Korvin, who lost 15 pounds while he was making "Berlin Express," is on a "get fat" diet. And let me say he is the envy of half the gals in Hollywood.

Shirley Temple

Shirley Temple and John Agar celebrated their second wedding anniversary at a table for two at Ciro's.

A new game called "Bing Crosby Derby" will be on the market soon. Bing is turning the royalties over to charity.

Virginia Bruce has received word that her husband, Ali Ipar, has arrived safely in Turkey. But I doubt very much if Virginia will join him there as she first planned. Too many things involved.

Talk is that Jack Dempsey has plans to buy a hotel in Las Vegas.

Dennis Day is entertaining Maude Walker, who arrived by bus to see him. She is 81 years old, comes from El Paso, Tex., and has been writing to Denn's for over a year. He took her out to dinner and to the Biltmore Bowl and gave her the time of her life.

"Verdi," one of Franz Werfel's earlier novels, is being dramatized by Ladislaus Bus-Fekete and Mary Helen Fay. The two writers have just returned from Europe where they went to gather atmosphere on the life of the celebrated Italian composer.

Eve Arden is sporting a new mink coat, and she wants it known it's a gift from Eve Arden to Eve Arden.

Jose Iturbi has been made an officer in the French Legion of Honor, and will therefore be given the red rosette, the official sign of this high position. He will go to France to accept the honor in person.

Marcus Goodrich's novel "Delilah" is being reissued. It's a fine book and was a best seller.

Broadway's Voice

NEW YORK, Sept. 23—Mel Torme is wearing a sapphire ring from his newest pash, Betty Carson—formerly a Copa showgirl . . . Marilyn Buferd, last year's "Miss America," is nursing an injured eye. An autograph hound jabbed her with a pencil . . . Are Mr. and Mrs. Orin Hoot, Jr. (Daphne Skouras) knitting tiny garments? . . . Marie McDonald and Harry Karl are all set to spend their honeymoon at the Yankee Stadium and Ebbets Field . . . Producer Harry Arian is dickering with the beautiful O'Connor twins to succeed the present ingenue lead in "A Young Man's Fancy"—his theory being that one can understudy the other and no one will ever know when a substitution has been made . . . The way to find a divine apartment apparently is to go to Europe and then come back. Lucienne Boyer has just acquired a fabulous eight-room duplex on Park ave., and society singer Anne Francine, returning after a year in Paris, immediately managed to ensnare herself in a perfectly beautiful layout on East 57th st.

Marilyn Buferd

THE DIAMOND-ETCHED "LSMFT" on the new gold bracelet being worn by the feminine half of the Copa dance team known as Mario and Flavio isn't an ad for that cigaret firm—it's a wedding anniversary gift from her partner and husband and the letters stand for "Let's Stay Married Forever, Toots" . . . Song writer Johnny Green will make another fortune with the revival of his song, "Body and Soul," hottest of all the torch ballads . . . The movie budget for "Joan of Lorraine" has been slashed, in line with the economy wave in Hollywood. But veteran movie men are betting that expenses will climb right back to the original estimates. After all, who's going to make an Ingrid Bergman movie on a pinch-penny basis?

IDA LUPINO'S new beau is a big Hollywood name—but not a star. They frequent the quieter places . . . Broadwayites are kidding about the Danny Kaye-Eve Arden friendship. They say it can't possibly stay romantic for very long—because two comics inevitably talk on each other's punch lines. Jorge Pasquel, the fabulous Mexican millionaire sportsman, is due to visit New York and has favorite Linda Darnell set to stay . . . Douglas Fairbanks, Jr., who runs the United Nations current tomorrow night as a favor for a worthy purpose. He's working on an unknown. Made-to-Carroll type to feature in his next independent production . . . The Main Stem bet is that Victor Mature, on the strength of his "Kiss of Death" performance, will be offered "Knock On Any Door" when Mark Hellinger gets around to it.

ELLA FITZGERALD'S recording of "A-Tisket A-Tasket" is selling for $7 at the Sixth ave. second-hand disc shops . . . Society photog Jerry Zerbe is recovering from an airplane incident. Suffering shock . . . A very clothes-conscious lady, whose beautiful hands are her fortune (being in constant demand for commercial photography) will learn here to her dismay that a big price tag was dangling from the back of her new fall hat the whole time she was cutting up ballroom touches on the Stork Club parquet Tuesday night.

NATIONAL DOG WEEK begins Sept. 28, with Beth Brown's volume, "Hotel For Dogs" named the official Book of the Year. Do you know that Hollywood has more hospitals for cats and dogs than for humans . . . That an easy way to give your dog medicine is to place him in a pillowslip and pull a drawstring around his neck, thereby completely covering his feet and paws—and that a recent census taken at a large penitentiary revealed that less than five out of every 100 prisoners ever had a pooch? . . . A Gotham cafe socialite is long-distancing Pat Dane, Tommy Dorsey's ex . . . Trend or no trend, isn't this the very end? When Dizzy Gillespie offers his Afro-Cuban suite at Carnegie Hall on the 29th he will label the two parts of his program "Cubana Be" and "Cubana Bop" (oh, stop!) . . . Judy Canova will junk her hillbilly twang for three songs—done straight—in her next film.

THE JOHNSTON OFFICE would like ex-Secretary of State Jimmy Byrnes to use his influence with the British in reducing the new high tariff on American movies . . . Linda Christians is in town. Turhan Bey follows any day now . . . Charlotte Greenwood has insured her long legs for $25,000 . . . Crowding in Los Angeles schools is so bad that first grade children are finding themselves in eighth-grade classrooms . . . Kay Kyser, who has become an expert on public health, will give three speeches on the subject at the American Hospital Ass'n convention next week in St. Louis.

"We're having leftovers from my bridge party for dinner — Mrs. Guenich and Mrs. Gargle!"

Washington Scene

WASHINGTON, Sept. 23—A fellow, who during the war was telling you and me and the neighbors what we could eat, what we could wear, and how to conduct our lives generally, called up the other day and asked if I knew where he could get a job.

I felt like advising him to see Truman and ask if any cabinet jobs were open because he does not have enough skill and experience for anything else. But I refrained.

It is astounding how many highly-placed wartime bureaucrats, who once held almost Godlike powers over our destinies, are now on their uppers.

On second thought I take back that "astounding." To those of us who goggled through those irrational days, seeing combastic imbecility exalted and efficiency frustrated, it is about as astounding as the sun rising in the east.

The fact that we won the war, if nothing else, proves that not all our brass hats of government were in the former category. We were fortunate in having the services of some of the finest national brains. In the main they worked quietly and at peak efficiency, usually departing unsung, or with bloody little credit.

BUT THEY HAD to cope day and night with some of the most puffed-up freaks ever assembled in one community. The latter were throwing their weight around in every agency of government.

These exalted zip-the-whatis-its knew everything about everything. They knew more about farming than the farmer; more about banking than the banker; more about manufacturing than the manufacturer, and, of course, more about what was good for us all than we knew ourselves.

Moreover, when they got an idea, no matter how preposterous, they had the power to make it a decree. They could even order the cuffs off your pants and make it stick.

They could even do like the college professor in OPA who decreed against extra gas rations for victory gardeners, arguing they could contribute better to the nation's food supply by going hunting and fishing—presumably in the City Hall courtyard because he refused to allow extra gas for that either.

MOST OF THESE weird wizards took it as a personal affront when the war ended but they had grandiose plans. Loftily, they threw out hints that they might accept portfolios with private enterprise if the salaries were right and they were given panelled offices with plenty of pushbuttons.

Quite a few got good jobs too, on the strength of their own representations. You can't blame a businessman for thinking he might be acquiring something in a fellow who all along had been telling him how to run his business.

But, with regretfully few exceptions, they flopped like seals into a tank. In peacetime competition they couldn't qualify as filing clerks.

I bring this up now because these jobless incompetents are straggling back to Washington in alarming numbers. They are working every wire-pulling, log-rolling trick in the book to get back at the Federal trough.

Never a day goes by but what you hear:

"So-and-so is back in town. He's trying to get another job with the government."

But the most alarming of all is that President Truman seems to be weakening in their direction, too. A lot of the downs-and-outers were his cronies or cronies of his cronies. The other day he called upon Federal agencies to hire qualified career employes who have been laid off in reductions of forces.

That "qualified" sounds good, but you know how it might be interpreted in government.

AN IMPOSING audience, which included many of our most hoity-toity society mesdames and mesdamoiselles, was thrown into hushed consternation the other evening by Mr. Morton Downey, the celebrated singer and piano mover.

As is customary with our society ladies they kept on talking during the performance. Suddenly Mr. Downey halted in mid-song and shouted at Jean Laumier, headwaiter of the Statler's swanky Embassy Room:

"Hey, Jean! Throw that gabby dame out!"

It worked. Every doll in the place thought Mr. Downey meant her.

Yom Kippur Rites Start at Sunset

Yom Kippur, holiest day in the Jewish calendar, begins with tonight's setting sun and the intonation of the Kol Nidre prayer.

Members of that faith then begin a 24-hour period of prayer and abstinence from food and drink.

The Day of Atonement will complete the 10 Penitential Days, which started with Rosh Hashonah, the Jewish New Year which is 5708.

Tomorrow afternoon memorial services will be held in most synagogues during which the names of the departed of the past year will be recalled.

Rep. Lane Sees Jewish Home in Palestine by '49

Dreams of the Jewish people to again have a homeland in Palestine will come true by 1949, according to a prediction made by Rep. Thomas L. Lane in addressing more than 1000 persons in Chelsea.

Lane said Britain would surrender its mandate and the Big Five among the nations would approve partitioning the Holy Land into a Jewish State and an Arab State and make Jerusalem an autonomous city.

Navy Blocks $100 Extra Pay Loophole

WASHINGTON, Sept. 23 (AP) —The Navy undertook today to block a loophole in its regulations which has permitted many sailors and WAVES to collect an extra $100 in mustering out pay for simply traveling through Canada or Mexico en route to new stations in this country.

R. Adm. Thomas L. Sprague, chief of the bureau of personnel, has ruled that alternate routes must be used hereafter "where it is evident that eligibility for the additional $100 mustering out pay would be based solely on travel through Canada or Mexico."

Home Garden Forum

By FOSTER H. WEISS

Head of the Vegetable Gardening Dept., Norfolk County Agricultural School.

Q—I plan to plow poultry manure into the garden this fall. When should the phosphate be added?

A—If you are putting on a heavy coat of manure, it is best to apply the phosphate with the manure and plow it in. Broadcast about 30 pounds to each 1000 sq. ft. right over the manure before plowing.

Q—What crop will give the most protection from erosion on a side hill?

A—Winter rye or winter wheat, if planted early and thick, will form a heavy mass and stand up well on a side hill. On hilly land the cover crop should be started early.

Q—Is it necessary to fertilize the green manure crops in the fall?

A—Not in most cases. There is usually enough fertilizer left over from the garden crops to give the green manure crop a good start.

Q—Is it too late now to seed in bare patches on the lawn?

A—There is still time to sow grass seed. If planted before Oct. 1, it should become well established

This is only for people who eat

EVERY NORMAL PERSON eats over one thousand meals a year. Most of us eat most of those meals at home.

This advertisement is about home cooking. Consequently, at this point, most men will stop reading. That's too bad for us, because we won't get our full money's worth out of the ad. It's also too bad for the men, because they could learn something about what a women's magazine means in their lives.

Food is the biggest daily problem in the home. Somebody has to plan for it. Somebody has to work out the menus. Millions of women depend on Good Housekeeping to give them their daily ideas.

In the current October issue, for example, there is a Cheese Chart. This chart lists 29 kinds of cheese. It describes their origin. Their shape. Their uses. All the way from Bel Paese to Swiss. It's a chart that women will save. It's a sort of encyclopedia on the subject. Some of those new cheese dishes you'll be eating soon probably will stem from it.

The excellent pot roast (beef, lamb or veal) you are served in the next few days also may come from the recipes in this October issue. They are delicious recipes. They include potato pancakes.

There is not much point in taking this thing in order, so we'll skip to doughnuts. Anybody who wants to make wonderful doughnuts can learn how, from this issue. Of course it's easy to buy doughnuts from a bake shop. But do you know what a Good Housekeeping reader will do with them? She'll cut them crosswise into two rings. Then she'll sprinkle the cut surfaces with light brown sugar and cinnamon, put them under a broiler until they are golden brown and bubbly. They're very good that way.

You like sea food? Recipes this month for creamed oysters and panned oysters. For a succulent shrimp curry. For a scalloped tuna-and-potato casserole that could be standard equipment on a dream boat. For salmon à la Newburg.

There's an article that tells how to make two delicious dinners for two from a 3- to 3½-lb. frying chicken.

Because sweet potatoes are coming in, there are recipes for them. (Do you know that one medium-size, deep yellow sweet potato supplies a normal person's daily need of Vitamin A?)

This one issue of Good Housekeeping alone carries more than 60 editorial columns about food. From it even a man who has read this far could learn how to make a perfect apple pie. (Of course it's done with pictures and captions, step-by-step stuff, so he couldn't go wrong.)

There are instructions for preparing mushrooms (more ways than you'd imagine, not excluding broiled, stuffed, creamy, sautéed). Halloween menus, naturally. The best way to prepare frankfurters and beans. Hungarian goulash on poppy-seed noodles. Garnishes for meat platters including white-grape clusters, sautéed olives, gingered pineapple slices, cranberry rounds. Full details—menus and recipes—for buffet suppers. Cake recipes. Things you can do with soup from cans on the pantry shelf: tomato and onion, mushroom-shrimp bisque, corn chowder. Special meals that help keep a food budget in balance (aside to that man: have you increased your wife's house allowance lately? Better think of it quick—food costs are way up to here).

This could go on. After all, 60 columns cover a lot of food ideas. But food, as we started out to say, is the biggest daily problem in the home. Women have to cope with it. So we have to cope with it.

For 63 years Good Housekeeping has been serving the interests of women. Its prime, basic, fundamental business is with them. It always has been. Which undoubtedly is the reason why so many millions of people thoughtfully regard it as the most important magazine in America.

Every word of homemaking advice in Good Housekeeping is backed up by conclusive proof in use. No other magazine maintains extensive laboratories to establish this proof.

That's why Good Housekeeping is able to make this pledge:

That at no time, and not for any reason, or any profit, will any page in Good Housekeeping—editorial or advertising—trade unfairly on its readers' trust.

Hurrah! Cocoanut's Back! For Versatile Treats

By MARTHA LEE, Household Editor

MORE GOOD NEWS on the food front is that cocoanut is back. This versatile product was hard hit during the war years, for practically all the cocoanut used in this country comes from the Philippine Islands. Last year found shipments starting once more and imports increased steadily until supplies now approach prewar volume.

The flavor and moisture of cocoanut in modern containers is protected by heavy waxed wrapping inside the package. And many of the cans now carry recipes for cake and pie and other suggestions.

COCOANUT MACAROONS

1 4-oz. pkg. cocoanut
½ cup sugar
1 egg, well beaten
1 tsp. almond flavoring

Mix cocoanut and sugar well. Beat egg thoroughly until stiff, then add to cocoanut mixture. Add flavoring and blend well. Drop from a teaspoon on a greased baking sheet. Bake in moderate oven (350 deg. F.) 15 to 20 minutes until golden brown. Makes about 1 dozen large macaroons. Store in an airtight container.

COCOANUT ORANGE CAKE

½ cup butter or margarine
1 cup sugar; 2 eggs
1 tsp. almond flavoring
1 2-3 cups cake flour, sifted
2½ tsp. baking powder
½ tsp. salt; ½ cup milk

Cream margarine and add sugar slowly, blending well. Beat until light. Add eggs, 1 at a time. Add almond flavoring. Sift flour, baking powder and salt together. Add dry ingredients to butter or margarine-egg mixture in three parts, alternating with milk. Blend well and pour mixture into two greased 9-inch layer cake pans. Bake in oven at 375 deg. F. for 25 minutes or until golden brown and firm. Cool. Sandwich with following frosting and cover cake with remainder.

COCOANUT ORANGE FROSTING

2 eggs, well beaten
4 cups cocoanut
1 tbsp. grated orange rind
½ cup confectioner's sugar
¼ cup orange juice
2 cups whipped cream

To the well beaten eggs, add 3 cups cocoanut, grated orange rind, confectioners' sugar and orange juice. Fold in whipped cream and blend well. Chill thoroughly before spreading on cake. After cake has been covered with frosting, sprinkle remaining cup of cocoanut over top.

COCOANUT CUSTARD PIE

3 eggs, slightly beaten
½ cup sugar,
2 cups scalded milk.
1 tsp. vanilla.
1 pkg. cocoanut.
3 tbsp. bread crumbs.
1 9-inch pie shell.

To slightly beaten eggs, add sugar, scalded milk and vanilla. Stir well and add ½ package cocoanut to mixture. Sprinkle bread crumbs in bottom of pie shell and pour custard into shell. Bake in a moderately slow oven 325 deg. F.) 30 minutes or until custard is set. Toast remaining cocoanut by spreading in a thin layer on an ungreased baking sheet and toasting in moderate oven (350 deg. F.) 10 minutes, stirring frequently, until golden brown. Sprinkle over pie before serving. Makes 6 to 8 servings.

COCOANUT COFFEE CREAM

1 lb. marshmallows
4 cups strong coffee
1 4-oz. pkg. cocoanut

Place marshmallows in top of double boiler. Heat coffee and simmer until it is reduced to 2 cups in quantity. Pour the 2 cups hot coffee on marshmallows and stir over boiling water until they are dissolved. Stir in cocoanut and pour mixture into a 3-pint mold which has been rinsed in cold water. Chill in refrigerator until firm. Unmold, serve with cream, plain or whipped. Makes 6 servings.

New Color-Keyed Lipstick

By RUTH MUGGLEBEE, Beauty and Fashion Editor

WITH HER USUAL FLAIR for anticipating important cosmetic trends . . . a noted beauty pioneer now presents another "first" of major significance to every woman . . . and to the cosmetic industry. Her original new color-keyed lipstick "fourcast" marks a completely new development in her unique color theory.

She has picked the four most flattering lipstick shades for every woman to wear with her four most flattering colors . . . whether she is blonde, brunette, redhead, medium-brown or silver-gray type. Then . . . to make the color selection simple and virtually infallible . . . she has encased each lipstick in the costume color with which it is to be worn.

Now for the first time . . . a woman of any complexion can choose the most becoming lipstick shade to wear with the dress she has on . . . without reading a single word. She simply picks the lipstick case that goes with her costume.

Here is how it works. A blonde wearing a blue dress simply selects the blue-encased lipstick for the blonde . . . without referring to a complicated color chart . . . and be assured that she is absolutely correct . . . color-keyed in costume and lip color and complexion tone.

This lipstick "fourcast" consists of four metal lipsticks . . . enclosed in a smart and attractive plastic case . . . slim as a cigaret case . . . that can be easily carried in the purse. A tiny simplified color-key is enclosed in each case to explain this color theory briefly . . . and to suggest the right shades of foundation, face powder, eye shadow, rouge and nail lacquer to wear with each lipstick and costume color.

There are five different "fourcasts": For the blonde, the brunette, medium-brown, redhead and silver-gray. Each metal lipstick is banded with color . . . the color of the costume with which the lipstick should be worn. Each case contains four lipsticks . . . and each lipstick case is a different color. The four-case colors represent the four most flattering costume color families for the color-type for which the case is designed.

The fabric colors shown on the four lipsticks for each of the five different types fall into the following categories: Classic . . . the shade each color-type is sure to have in her wardrobe (green for the redhead, blue for the blonde) . . . romantic, the shade in which to look most feminine, most appealing . . . daring, the shade that throws your own coloring into sharpest relief . . . discreet, the shade that harmonizes most subtly with your own natural coloring.

Here is what beauty experts have been trying to do for a long time . . . give capsule information backed up by tangible beauty-aid to make women look like a symphony of related color beauty.

For the name of this unique beauty "first," a lipstick fourcast color-keyed for each complexion type, phone the Beauty Dept., LIBerty 4000, daily except Sunday, or write me, care of the Boston American, inclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

IF YOU ARE of medium-brown coloring, as this model is, you'll find that plush red is the correct lipstick shade to wear with your soft blue dress. An original new color-keyed lipstick "fourcast" . . . marking a completely new development in the unique color theory of a noted cosmetician . . . makes lipstick and costume coordinated color selection a cinch . . . and relatively beautiful.

He Changes His Mind, Now

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX: I am 19 and have been going with a fellow the same age for about a year. We talked about getting married quite a lot. But, during the summer he went away to work and I met a man of 21 with whom I went—out a couple of times.

So I wrote my steady and told him I didn't want to go steady any more. However, after about two weeks, I found out how much I still loved and missed him, so I called him up and we started going together again.

The other night when we were out he told me he didn't want to go steady any more although he still loved me. He is the most wonderful fellow I have ever gone with and the only one I could ever love, and I would like to know how I can get him back.

"BEWILDERED,"

Dear "Bewildered":

Did you ever hear the old saying that "turn-about is fair play?" If you felt free to tell your boy friend that you didn't want to go with him any more, certainly you should be ready to give him the same privilege. It is too bad that you were in such a hurry to take up with the new acquaintance, for it looks as though you had started something that gave your first boy friend ideas of his own.

In all fairness, I think you should certainly be as ready to accept his change of mind as you expected him to be with yours. Perhaps, like yourself, he will find that after he has tried going out with others you are the one he prefers. About all you can do now is to wait and see, trying to be friendly and understanding in the meantime.

Introduction

It is not good form to make an introduction that "gives orders." For example, you should not say "meet" . . . "meet my friend" or "meet my wife (or 'husband')"; or shake hands with . . ."; or "let me make you acquainted with . . ."; or "make the acquaintance of . . ."; "let me introduce"; or "let me present."

Evans in 'Man, Superman' Hailed at Shubert

By PEGGY DOYLE

Don't ever let them tell you the theater is gone, perfectly gone, my masters, after last night at the Shubert.

This—for a change—is a complete, unqualified rave for an evening in the theater that might have died with the Maxine Elliotts, the Joe Jeffersons and the Ada Rehans for all you have been reading about it in the journals of late.

It took a sage with a snowy beard and an actor who alternated in Shaw and Shakespeare at London's Old Vic before he became one of our great actor-managers to restore magic to the theater. Shaw's witty, biting comedy, "Man and Superman," which Maurice Evans presented last night at the Shubert Theater, is the vehicle for one of Evans' most brilliant performances.

The incomparable iridescence of Shaw's dialogue is matched by a frequently surprising topical quality that causes one to wonder why Broadway has never seen fit to revive it since 1912. (It was produced in New York only one time before that . . . in 1905, by the late Charles Dillingham, both times with Robert Loraine in the lead.)

Shaw must be the despair of young playwrights by reason of his immense technical skill, his richly stocked imagination, his barbed wit and the prophetic timelessness of his writing.

Somewhere in "Man and Superman," he speaks of "when I'm 90 and in my dotage." He is now a year beyond that, still maintains a tough working schedule . . . and is certain to be acclaimed for giving Broadway its finest theater, theater in the great tradition, next month when the Evans revival is due in our First City.

And just as Gielgud and Wilde's "The Importance of Being Earnest," represented perfect teaming, so do Evans and "Man and Superman" register as the ideal partnership.

Evans' John Tanner, that amply logical, consistently woman-resistant Shavian hero who knows a man-trap when he sees her, is another masterpiece to add to his gallery of fine stage portraits. In the final scene when Frances Rowe's mesmeric, one-track Ann Whitefield claims him as her unwilling victim, he appears to wilt and to lose physical stature before your very eyes.

Miss Rowe, who is one of England's better known young stage and screen stars, makes a nice thing of her Thespian man-stalking.

Others in the fine supporting cast with which Mr. Evans has surrounded himself are Malcolm Keen, distinguished British actor who was last seen here in John Gielgud's production of "Love for Love" as the comic Sir Sampson and currently giving a flavorful interpretation of the highly conventional Roebuck Ramsden, and Carmen Matthews, who played in the Evans "Hamlet" and who does some very adroit tongue-in-cheek performing in the present production.

Chester Stratton's Tavy, who rushes at matrimony as impulsively as John Tanner does from it, is well done. Josephine Brown's mother who refused to be hoodwinked by her designing daughter Ann has her moments during the evening. Tony Bickley's Hector Malone, Jr., one of Shaw's choicely caricatured Americans, and Victor Sutherland's senior Malone, even more outrageously bounderish, are comedy contrast in this brilliant play of wit and wisdom.

Mr. Evans' unfailingly expert direction helps to make the production the perfect thing it is. There are important assists by David Folkes, in the matter of costuming that imparts a lift as well as some lovely, colorful effects, and Frederick Stover, whose sets also suggest imagination.

Last week it was Eva Le Gallienne's opening of the incomparably beautiful production of "Alice in Wonderland," at the Opera House, that restored the wonderful make-believe world of childhood to starry-eyed boys and girls of all ages.

It was another red-letter night in the theater last night at the Shubert, a night to remind us that the theater is as alive and vital as its playwrighting and its play-acting.

Duffy Lewis Fete Best of Its Kind Staged in Hub

By HUCK FINNEGAN

THE SONG HAS ended but the melody will linger long in the hearts of Boston baseball fandom. All who attended the Duffy Lewis banquet at the Statler (some 800) were agreed today that it was the best of its type ever staged in Boston. As Tris Speaker said: "Please find another reason for winging us together again," meaning the greatest outfield of all time—Hooper, Speaker and Lewis.

Hooper was speaking under a cloud. His mother is dying in California, and he's flying back today to be at her bedside. Speaker proved himself a master of forensics, a raconteur of note, one who would brighten any winter baseball banquet.

Lewis was showered with gifts and, as Bill Foley said: "You won't go hungry this winter, at any rate, Duff."

Bill McGowan told a story about Joe McCarthy that brought the house down. Baseball fans like intimate stories. Speaker told some dandies, but the best are always told after the dinner as, for example:

"Joe Wood was trying for his 17th straight win in 1912," said Speaker. "We had clinched the pennant, and shortstop Heinie Wagner and Bill Carrigan were in New York scouting the Giants for the World Series. Marty Krug played short in Wagner's absence. Wood had a two-run lead with three on two out in the ninth. Batter hit a fly to Krug who muffed it and with everybody running all three scored to beat Wood by one run."

Like the time substitute outfielder Jim Moore muffed a fly that cost Lefty Grove his 17th successive win. Grove never forgave Al Simmons for not playing left field that day. Al had claimed illness.

Spoke and Hoop both agreed that the loss did Wood more good than harm. "He had been pitted against the best pitcher of rival clubs in every series," they said, "including that notable 1-0 victory over Walter Johnson. He was tense during that string, and with the World Series coming up it was good for all concerned that he lost one."

Best Series Catch Ever Made

THAT 1912 World Series, incidentally, is one that immortalized Hooper. His bare-handed catch of Larry Doyle's fly over the right field fence is acknowledged to be the best catch ever made in World Series history.

There was the matter of salaries. Tris admitted he got $3000 his first year from the Red Sox, but Hooper got only $2800 and Lewis $2400. They didn't pay high salaries in those days.

"Never got more than $3000 in Boston," said Hooper, and neither did Lewis. When Spoke asked for more money for 1916 he was sold to Cleveland.

Shifts? They had 'em years ago.

"Kil speed demon pulled Maurice Archdeacon was purchased for $40,000 to take my place in right field while I was with Chicago," Hooper reminisced. "He could bunt but he couldn't hit the ball out of the infield. Connie Mack saw this at a glance, moved the first baseman in for a bunt and had the second baseman cover first every time Archdeacon came to bat. That stopped him, and I soon was back in right field. But though they paid $40,000 for Archdeacon they trimmed my salary. They did some funny things in those days."

Yeh, like the time the Red Sox sent Ray "Pete" Collins a contract for $1200 for spite—just because the winning southpaw advised the ballplayers about jumping to the Federal League. Since none of the Sox jumped, his advice couldn't have been harmful.

Party a Grand Success

BUT BACK TO the party. A grand success.

Eddie Collins, ill for months, insisted on reporting and making a speech.

"The baseball played by Speaker, Hooper and Lewis under Bill Carrigan established a heritage that we are trying to live up to," said the Sox' general manager, a Hall-of-Fame member like Speaker, and termed by Lewis "Best second baseman I ever saw play."

John F., mayor in that halcyon day, sang "Sweet Adeline" and sang it notably well for one of his age, and he trimmed it off with a stirring tribute to Lewis.

Ford Frick, Lou Perini, Bill Klem, Joe Cronin, John Quinn, Bill Carrigan all contributed their bit.

Lewis thanked Carrigan for keeping him in the lineup in '15 when he was in a slump. "I had a wonderful World Series," said Lewis," received $1000 a week in vaudeville that winter and have Carrigan to thank for it."

It is not commonly known but Lewis was so well fixed in the late '20's that he gave half his fortune to Ste. Anne de Beaupre. He planned to retire to the Riviera with the other half but the market crash wiped him out.

But such is the stuff Duff is made of that he bounced off the floor to stage a winning bout. He's idolized by millions everywhere along the line, and that he has sincere friends was proved last night. His motto always was: "Spend a buck more and travel first class."

"Santa Claus certainly came early," he said as he remained late and signed autographs by the hundred. "We're still traveling first class."

Rickey Hints of More to Come As Dodgers Back Into Flag

The Brooklyn Dodgers, only team ever to win a pennant at midnight, awoke this morning as official National League champions of 1947, and in the words of Pres. Branch Rickey "for many years to come."

Not many of the Brooks were aware of the good news until today. Only those few who had stayed over at Brooklyn pitcher Hugh Casey's restaurant learned last night that the long grind finally was over and that the Dodgers had backed into the pennant a la Yankees.

The time was precisely 11:39 p. m. (EDT). It came about when the Chicago Cubs, who had dropped the opener of a day-night double-header, 4-2, to fan the Cardinals' flickering hopes for a few more hours, defeated the Redbirds 6-3 in the second game thus eliminating them from the race.

Instead of the usual tumult and shouting that usually accompanies the winning of a flag, the players as well as the Flatbush faithful took the triumph in stride.

"After all, one Brooklyn player declared, "it was 'in the bag' the minute we grabbed the rubber game in St. Louis last week." Last night's mathematical elimination of the Cards was strictly anticlimax.

Probably the calmest and unruffled member of the not-so-noisy Dodger entourage was the big boss, himself, Branch Rickey. "Naturally, I'm delighted beyond expression," said the major domo of the Dodgers. "But I can't say I'm surprised. After all, it was a foregone conclusion once we whipped the Cardinals two out of three in St. Louis.

Rickey expressed pleasure over the work of Manager Burt Shotton, his coaches and all the players and was especially proud over the fact that he had kept a promise he had made to the Dodger fans five years ago.

"When I joined Brooklyn in 1943, I promised our followers that I would give them a winner within five years. Well, next March I will celebrate my fifth year with the Dodger organization."

It was then that he threw the shot that might be construed as a challenge to the rest of the league.

"Winning a flag, especially in Brooklyn, creates a tremendous World Series problem. I'm inclined to think we are going to be faced with such a problem in Brooklyn for many years to come."

Rickey, who earlier this season, had expressed his opinion that the Dodgers would finish no higher than second this year, but would win the flag next year, predicted that his club would be stronger in '48. "We have some fine prospects coming up next season, some you probably never heard of. They'll make us much tougher to beat."

The Dodger Mahatma, who as farm director and general manager of the Cardinals from 1919 through 1942, prior to his move to Brooklyn, had helped the Redbirds capture six pennants and four world championships, averred that his latest winner gave him one of the biggest kicks he ever had gotten out of baseball.

"This was a great victory," he said. "I don't think I've ever enjoyed winning a flag as much as this one. We overcame many obstacles. Any time you beat the Cardinals you have achieved a great victory. By and large, the opposition was perhaps the strongest in years. The Cards are still a great team and have been well managed. So have the Braves and Giants. Give the Giants another pitcher or two, and they will be the team to watch in '48."

As has been his custom all year, Shotton, who was inserted as a pinch manager for the exiled Leo Durocher a few days after the season began, gave all of the credit to the players.

"I'm happy for the boys. They deserve a lot of credit for the way they hustled and fought against odds all year," he said. "They did a great job. I'm proud to be their manager."

Dixie Walker, one of the main cogs in the Dodgers' pennant drive attributed the success to the team's ability to bunt.

"This team has bunted better than any team I've ever been with," he said. "If the Dodgers of 1946 had been able to bunt two-thirds as well as this year's team, we would have walked in with the pennant."

Ed Stanky, the scrappy little second baseman, whose smart, alert team play was another big factor in the Dodgers' success, called Brooklyn the greatest late inning club he had ever seen.

"Look at the records, and you will see that we won most of our games in the seventh, eighth and ninth innings," he said. "We simply wore out the opposing pitchers."

Rickey and Shotton agreed that the job was not over yet. "We still have a job to finish—take care of the Yankees in the World Series," said Rickey.

Shotton said that he would rest most of his regulars for the big series against the Yankees

Johnson, Stobbs Hurl

Two lefthanders, one of whom was graduated from Granby High School of Norfolk, Va., only last June, were the pitching selections for the Red Sox this afternoon when the dethroned American League champions bid Boston adieu for the season in a double-header against the Philadelphia Athletics.

They are 18-year-old Chuck Stobbs and Earl Johnson.

Tied for second place with the Detroit Tigers, the Sox also were forced to call on two rookie catchers, Eddie McGah and Matt Batts, as both Birdie Tebbetts and Roy Partee are on the injured list.

The Sox, also minus two pitchers, Mickey (Himself) Harris and Tex Hughson (both have sore arms), will wind up the season with a single game against the Yankees in New York on Thursday and singles against the Senators in Washington Saturday and Sunday.

Jim McCahan and Phil Marchildon were scheduled to pitch for Connie Mack's A's today.

Yesterday was an off day for the Sox and also for the Braves.

The third place Tribe, now only a game and a half in back of the toppled world champion St. Louis Cardinals, plays again Thursday when the fourth place Giants come to town for a two-game series. Today and tomorrow they will perfom before movie cameras for a Braves' promotional film.

The Cards, by losing to the Cubs last night, now are mathematically eliminated from the National League's flag chase.

The Dodgers, who now have been assured of representing the National League against the Yankees in the World Series, follow the Giants into Boston for single contests on Saturday and Sunday when the season ends.

Clemson Real Test For B. C.

Boston College will be renewing a relationship which sprang up in the Cotton Bowl in 1940 when it takes the field against the Clemson Tigers in their opening game under the lights at Braves Field Friday night. Clemson, which handed the Eagles a 6-3 defeat in their first of three bowl encounters holds a two to one edge in the series.

The '40 eleven sported such names as Charley O'Rourke, Henry Toczlowski, Vito Ananis and Gene Goudreault.

In '41 the Tigers journeyed to the Hub and took their second straight over the Eagles by a 26-13 count. Their All-America end, Joe Blalock, latched on to a pair of touchdown passes and played a stellar game against B. C.

B. C. NEMESIS

However, a Clemson halfback named Payne was the thorn in the Eagles' side all that afternoon. It was he who threw the two scoring aerials to Blalock and, in addition, his accurate quick-kicking set the Heightsmen back on their heels. Twice he booted to the two-yard stripe, one of the kicks carrying 77 yards.

In '42 B. C. finally broke its jinx and topped their Southern rivals, 14 to 7 at Fenway Park. It took phenomenal runs by Mike Holovak and Mickey Connolly to top the Tigers. Connolly intercepted a Clemson pass on the B. C. 15 and raced 85 yards for the score. Holovak led a scoring march which started on the Eagle 11 and ended when big Mike plowed over on a short plunge for the winning margin.

Relations were suspended during the war years but now the Tigers are back and B. C. will be making every effort to even the series.

It won't be easy though. The Tigers ran a 42-0 count up on Presbyterian in their opener last weekend. Although Presbyterian cannot be classified as a "big time" opponent, a good portion of Clemson's scoring was done by the second and third stringers.

Bobby Gage, a triple-threat tailback, seemed to be the big gun on the Clemson eleven. He accounted for three touchdowns, one of which was a spectacular 80-yard end run.

A 19-year-old junior and veteran of three seasons, Gage amassed a total offensive gain of 280 yards, 182 by rushing and 98 by passing. The Clemson forward wall limited their opponents to 12 yards by rushing.

Local Boys Clicking On Colgate Grid Squad

Neil Dooley of Salem, star halfback who was instrumental in the 1944 Orange Bowl win by Salem over Mimai High, is headed for a first string position at Colgate University.

Jack Bauman, Marblehead, is also one of the strong contenders for a starting Colgate backfield berth.

CAPT. DON GILES
Sparkplug of BU's Eleven

Giles, Toner BU's 1-2 Punch

Although Boston University's "Buff" Donelli has emphasized that his ball club is tired, there are two lads on the squad that will be doing plenty of leather lugging come next Saturday night when the Terriers meet Mohawk College at Fenway Park in a floodlight contest.

The potent one-two punch of the Terrier attack will be provided by right halfback Don Giles and quarterback Johnny Toner, giving BU two men who can pass, run and kick.

When the season started, Donelli shifted Toner, who was a blocking back last year, into the quarterback spot, and the experiment proved to be highly successful. Toner is really eager to learn, and although it is expected that he will make mistakes, Coach Donelli has predicted that the Nantucket lad will be one of the best backs in the East two years hence.

Johnny is one of those rare gems that can do just about anything on the gridiron. He can punt with the best of them, his passing is deadly accurate, and above all he has a good head on his shoulders.

The Terrier strategists have groomed Toner to be the key man in Donelli's winged-T attack, and it will not surprise many if the Nantucket lad outshines Capt. Giles on the playing field.

As an added advantage to his already long list, Toner heaves his passes from the southpaw side which should help keep some of the Terrier opponents off balance. He also kicks from the left side, and could develop into an excellent place-kicker with a bit more work.

Captain Giles, the Milton flash, will hit the opposition from the right side of the backfield, and one need only glance at last year's statistics to see how well he handles himself. Don led the Terriers in passing, kicking and running a year ago, and Coach Donelli considers him the workhorse of the team.

Above everything else, Giles is really the sparkplug of the team. He's the boy that instills all the fire and pepper into the squad when the going gets rough.

Although a perpetual pepperpot on the field, Don is a rather quiet, reserved chap in civvies, and is looked up to by the rest of his teammates. An indication of Gile's popularity is that he is the only member of the squad that will not be required to wear the number designating his position. Coach Donelli is allowing him to wear the No. 33 which he has sported for the past three years.

Donelli Hedges at Choosing Between 'Cross,' Dartmouth

By BILL GRIMES

Aldo "Buff" Donelli, the Terriers' new football mentor, is a tough guy to "mousetrap." He proved that yesterday at the first football luncheon of the season when he refused to put either "Ox" De Grosa or "Tuss" McLaughry "on the spot" by airing his opinion of the relative strength of Holy Cross and Dartmouth.

Donelli was making his local debut at a press-coaches confab. He was warned that nothing is "off the record" at these gatherings. In view of the fact that his B. U. squad had scrimmaged the Crusaders twice and had gone through a two and a half hour workout against the Big Green last Saturday, Donelli was requested to compare the two clubs.

"John De Grosa's club come along slowly," declared Donelli cagily. "He used only four or five plays against us. So, I'm not in a position to pass judgment on his squad.

"Defensively, Dartmouth did very well," continued "Buff," "but, offensively, the Big Green wasn't smooth. 'Tuss' is using the 'T' but because of his schedule he's devoting most of his time to the defensive.

"Under the circumstances, it would be unfair on my part to make a comparison. But, I will say that Dartmouth tackles as well, if not better, than any club I've seen in a long time. And it will pay off, I wish now I'd spent more time instructing my boys in that department.

"You fellow are very confident about B. U. I wish I shared your confidence.

"I cannot really say that we are going to be any kind of a team. We must get our boys in the proper frame of mind to tackle such clubs as Harvard, Purdue, Fordham and Colgate.

"If we can give Harvard a good battle, I'll be satisfied."

In conclusion, Coach Donelli named his probable starting line up against Mohawks at Fenway Park Saturday night: Bob Malone and George Boston, ends, John McCarthy and Irving Heller, tackles, Al Stewart and Ed Harracz, guards, Ed Sandall, center, John Toner, quarterback, Capt. Don Giles and Bob Hatch, halfbacks and Gene Mancino, fullback.

Before commenting on his Harvard squad, Dick Harlow went to the front for Denny Myers, after admitting that the B. C. followers will not like him for expressing his honest opinion.

"Boston College will be outpersonelled 50 per cent by their opponents," Harlow prophesied. "The line is good but the backs are below standard and not deep enough.

"Ed Clasby is A-1," continued the Harvard coach, "he's smart and a grand kid. But, I'm keeping my fingers crossed that nothing will happen to him.

"B. C. will play wonderfully interesting football. They put pressure on you everywhere. And, they will have crowd appeal even if they lose three of four games.

"My boys will be rooting for Boston College and I know that Boston College will be pulling for Harvard.

"The Harvard line is pretty well set, thanks to our two scrimmages with Boston College. We are farther advanced than a year ago, mainly because we know these boys."

Then, Harlow named his starting line-up for the Western Maryland game: "Red" Hill and Wally Coulson, ends; Howard Houstan and Chester Pierce, tackles; Bob Drennan and Howard Foster, guards; Don Stone or Nick Rodis, centre; Ken O'Donnell, quarterback; Jim Kenary and "Chip" Gannon halfbacks and Capt. Vince Moravec fullback.

"We have a bad situation with classes" declared Denny Myers, Boston College coach. "Even the players are 'griping' that they are not getting enough work to keep in condition."

Reggie Brown, a veteran football expert who now is scouting for Boston College, reported on what he'd seen during the Clemson-Presbyterian game last Friday.

According to Brown, Clemson has a strong, well coached club, which includes four great backs.

The other speakers were Cliff Sundberg, chief of the B. U. public relation staff, Arthur G. Sampson and Al McCoy, of Boston Yanks, Head Coach Johnny Grinnell, Northeastern, and Bill Haywood, B. C. publicist.

Swinson's Loss Hurts Gloucester

Scouting reports and notes on Lynn Classical played a secondary role with Coach Nate Ross of the Gloucester High School football squad as he concentrated on his hospital list in preparation for his team's return to Manning Bowl, Lynn, Friday night to meet the rebounding Joyce club.

This tilt, following closely on the heels of the Melrose bruiser last Saturday, offers a one-two punch on the Fishermen's schedule that might very well cost the team the Class B crown.

Last week, for example, the team forfeited the services of Bob Swinson, smashing fullback who suffered pulled muscles in his thigh. Swinson was removed to a hospital during the second half of the Melrose contest and he'll probably not be discharged until today. That will make it impossible for him to be back in the line-up for the floodlight sell-out against the Lynn outfit.

Swinson was the most important casualty on Coach Ross' hospital list. But the Gloucester mentor still had "probabilities" listed in halfback Joe Pallazola; end Jerry O'Neil and halfback Danny Lowe. Pallazola, injured in a scrimmage against Everett, and O'Neil, a victim of tape burns, never dressed for the battle with the Class A champs last week. Lowe was hurt in the first five minutes of play but he returned to the lineup to score the tying touchdown.

However, Pallazola, Jerry O'Neil and Lowe will be back at practise today and unless they suffer relapses, the trio will be at their usual starting positions. Bob Jarvis will fill in for the injured Swinson.

This will mean that, with the loss of Swinson, the Fishermen will still have an orthodox passer in Pallazola to balance the highly-accurate, southpaw pitches of quarterback Gil O'Neill, a cagy signal-caller, a defensive star and so high in scholastic averages that he has been elected class president. The pair, if Pallazola lives up to his billing as an expert marksman, will sufficiently balance the reputation of Harry Aggasis pitching for Classical.

Gloucester's linemen were virtually impregnable against Melrose and that same starting group will find the "shuffle" system in vogue again this week. In all, Coach Ross employed 16 players up front in the opening game in holding the Raiders to a negligible figure in gained yardage.

Ends will be J. O'Neil, chief target for his brother's passes, and Hugh Curley; tackles will be co-Captain Irving Morris and Ken Keating; guards will be Bill Borge and Phil Worrall with co-Captain Ed Hallett at center.

Spares who will see service will be center Bill Boudreau; guards George Byard, Bob Silva, John Matheson; tackles Paul Dennis, Lou Francis, Jim Luster; ends Lee Saunders, John Souza; backs Jack Lucido, Sebastian "Busty" Nicastro, Russ Silvaria and John Silva.

Flanks, Center Berths Give Harlow Trouble

With his tackle and guard positions formidably occupied Coach Dick Harlow's only two trouble spots in the forward wall seem to be the center and end berths. Several of his boys have been on the job for varying periods, but no one has displayed enough talent to remain a fixture.

At the beginning of the fall sessions Chuck Glynn, a veteran of last season's successful eleven, appeared to be the boy to watch for some fancy center play, but this belief proved to be short-lived. Bolstered by Bill Hickey, a standout on last year's freshman club, the center burdens were not the foremost in Harlow's mind.

After the first BC scrimmage a newcomer appeared on the scene in the person of Don Stone whose sparkling play against the Heightsmen convinced his coaches that Squad D was unbecoming his football stature whereupon he was immediately transferred to Squad A. Evidently these transformations have left some doubtful thoughts in Coach Harlow's mind with the recent shift of stellar guard Nick Rodis to this position. Rodis has been displaying his wares very stylishly and with Jim Drennan and Jim Feinburg flanking him this sector of the line should provide rough opposition.

The end spots have followed this same pattern of indecision, with four local boys battling it out. Offensively, Red Hill and John Fiorentino, from Arlington and Everett respectively, have received the nod, but they have been pressed hard by Wally Flynn and Walt Coulson, former All-Scholastic from Lawrence. Coulson, a titan on defense, seems destined for a good season. In last year's Holy Cross game they ran his end all afternoon with no success. Hill showed up especially well in Saturday's tilt with BC catching some passes that would have gained plenty of ground. Another end aspirant who could easily supplant any of the above mentioned is local Bob Kennedy who has been a letterman in both '45 and '46. All in all the situation is heartening because of the depth of material, but as with his guards, Harlow hasn't got two outstanding flankers who can walk away with the position.

Capt. Vince Moravec finally hit his stride in the BC scrimmage . . . his crushing line plunges howled over many a would-be tackler and, even though he is not overly fancy in the open field, his terrific running power makes him a touchdown threat whenever he carries the ball.

Ted Has Good Chance to Take Crown

NEW YORK, Sept. 23 (AP)—Harry Walker of the Phillies and Ted Williams of the Red Sox appeared assured of winning the National and American League batting championships going into the final week of the season.

Walker, the fellow the St. Louis Cards traded to Philadelphia for Ron Northey in early season, is hitting .362, enjoying a 47-point bulge over runnerup Ralph Kiner, Pittsburgh's home run king. Walker has been out of action with a sore back but is expected to play most of the club's remaining games.

Williams' average of .342, like Walker's based on averages including Sunday's games, seems to be enough to last him through the season end Sept. 28.

In both leagues the chief contention is for the runnerup spot with six in a scrap for second in the National and six in the running behind Williams in the American.

Behind Kiner's second place .315 in the National Come Augie Galan of Cincinnati, .314, Phil Cavarretta of Chicago, .313, Pete Reiser of Brooklyn, .312, Bob Elliott of Boston, .311 and Tommy Holmes of Boston, .310, each separated by only one point. Walker Cooper of New York is eighth at .307 and Whitey Kurowski of St. Louis and Dixie Walker of Brooklyn, Harry's brother, are tied for ninth at .306.

McCosky, batting .328, has a strong challenger in Johnny Pesky of Boston whose 26-game hitting streak was snapped Sunday.

Fisheries-Games Division Revealed in Poor Condition

By "TAP" GOODENOUGH

Things are going from bad to worse in the Massachusetts Division of Fisheries and Games, it would appear, judging from an interview this writer had last night with one of the members of the five-man advisory committee recently appointed by Gov. Bradford to aid Director James Power.

During our conversation, it was revealed that far more fish and game could be raised in the Bay State than is being produced at present, due to antiquated methods. Upland bird gunning will be very poor this fall, despite misleading figures released by the division, while another startling disclosure showed that one hatchery suffered the loss of over 160,000 fingerling trout this year, the reason not yet explained satisfactorily.

"Our board was not set up to investigate conditions in the Division," stated the member. "We were established to advise Director Power in plans to improve fishing and hunting, but we discovered such an obvious muddle that something had to be done at once."

The five sportsmen who comprised the committee conferred with Gov. Bradford yesterday were informed that drastic action would be taken immediately.

Every state hatchery and game farm has been visited by the members of the committee during the past two weeks, and the gentlemen apparently had their eyes really opened — though all have been aware of the conditions for some time. It was found that 9000 pheasant eggs had been taken out and destroyed, 1500 of the eggs already hatched, for no tangible reason.

"The alibi given for this wasteful act," declared the committee member, "was that there was not enough feed on hand. However, we know that such was not the case."

It was also brought out that Director James Power hasn't visited certain farms and hatcheries for nearly a year . . . Strangely enough, when we first met Mr. Power two years ago, he told us that most of his time was spent in the field or at farms.

The committee has had two or three discussions with the director, but has been able to accomplish little.

The group has recommended that the Woodcock season set up for Nov. 3-17, be shifted to Oct. 20-Nov. 2, due to numerous requests from local sportsmen who feel the sport will be better earlier.

In summing up the sad situation, the board member stated: "It is too bad that the entire department of conservation wasn't reorganized last spring, as called for in the bill that didn't pass—due to plenty of political fumbling. But we intend to see that Massachusetts sportsmen are given the true facts henceforth."

This writer sincerely hopes that this committee will be able to pull our fishing and hunting "chestnuts" out of the fire before it's too late.

Yanks Depend On 3 Ex-Eagles

Three ex-Eagles, members of the 1940 Boston College National championship outfit, will provide the key to the Boston Yanks grid hopes when the local entry opens its National Football League season against the New York Giants at Fenway Park next Monday night.

Don Currivan, Monk Maznicki, and Rocko Canale make up the trio who'll play major roles in the all important opener.

During the five-game exhibition junket, Currivan was amazing. With Hal Crisler and Bill Chipley hurt, the defense put two men on Don and yet he turned in at least one spectacular catch a game. In addition, his all-around end play wasn't surpassed by anybody the Yanks faced.

Maznicki started slowly. After all, he played little for the Bears last year because of an injury and did not look too impressive in the first three games. But against the Packers and the Cardinals, he was the Monk of old. He snaked off tackle for more yardage than any other Yanks back and his defensive work was a revelation to the coaches.

As for "The Rock"—he's quite a story, too. The Yanks coaches were a bit worried about lack of experience at the left tackle spot and Rocco went to the coaches on his own and revealed that he had played tackle for the Philadelphia Eagles one season and he felt he could plug the gap—he did and in major league fashion.

Most Valuable Goalie Forced to Quit Game

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 23 (AP)—Nick Damore, Philadelphia Rockets goaltender, who was voted by American League sports-writers as the outstanding goalie of the 1945-46 season, has announced his retirement because of an old back injury.

Damore, who came to the Rockets from Hershey last season, spent the summer under treatment in an effort to be in condition for the 1947-48 play. Doctors said he is suffering from sciatic neuritis which developed as a result of an injury to an intervertebreal disc in the spine.

LOUISVILLE EVEN WITH MILWAUKEE

MILWAUKEE, Sept. 23 (AP)—With the American Ass'n playoff series even at two games each as a result of Louisville's 4-1 victory last night, the Milwaukee Brewers tonight will call on Al Epperly, who beat the Colonels in the series opener.

Jim Wilson will get the call for the Colonels in the 10th game of the best of seven series.

Louisville last night polished off Milwaukee's No. 1 right-hander, Vern Bickford, with a three-run attack in the second inning, then added a fourth run in the third. Bickford was succeeded by Jim Davis in the eighth.

Al Roberge was the only Brewer able to tap Jack Griffore consistently, getting three of the four Milwaukee hits.

3 Gotham Boxers on 'Pure' Card

Three amateur fighters from New York city have joined the imposing list of battlers who will be stepping into Boston Garden ring tomorrow night (7:30 p. m.) for a program that promises to be one of the outstanding cards of the indoor season—a virtual preview to the Olympic tryouts scheduled for next spring.

The trio will be 112-pounder Jimmy Quinn, eastern Golden Gloves champion; Jimmy Egan, 126-pounder, and Bob Dawson, 147-ponder.

Meanwhile, some few shifts have been made in the New England representative lists. John McDonald, Quincy middleweight, will be added to this division; Bob Hayes will be a replacement in the light-weight class in case Jackie Wilson, Quincy, should weigh in for the 147's. Howard Kane, Arlington, must carry on alone in the light-heavyweight division.

New England champion Al Tsakis, U. S. Navy, has been quarantined so that he will be unable to participate in the light-heavyweight class.

Interest continues to rise in the competition in the heavyweight class with Pete Fuller, Harvard, meeting the best in the country in NAAU champion Willie Clements, Indianapolis; Willie Champion, Cleveland, and John Contrades, Hawaii. Contrades has beaten Clements in a recent match in Honolulu.

Quincy Manets Meet Providence 'Rollers'

The New England Football Conference season is just a little more than a week old, but the game that may decide the first champion of the circuit may be in the making at the Quncy Municipal Stadium tomorrow night when the Quncy Manets meet the Providence Steam Rollers.

zProvidence will be led by Andy Karpus, who formerlyp played with the Detroit Lions and the old Boston Bears and Tom Dorsey, star of the '46 Brown University eleven.

HUSKIES STILL MISSING

George Lucas and Bob McIntyre still were missing today from Northeastrn's first-string eleven. They were not expected to start in the opening game against Springfield for lack of sufficient practice.

JOHN WARNER SAYS:
"TAKE CARE OF YOUR HAIR" 37

This young man has a fine head of hair and he doesn't give it any attention. Yet, his scalp is laden with dandruff, itches constantly and he loses a great deal of hair each day. Right now, a short period of the pleasant, low-cost scientific treatment used by John E. Warner and Associates would rid his scalp of dandruff, check the hair-fall and normalize his scalp.

A year later the hair has receded at the temples and our young man is worrying about it. He douses his head with rare-all lotions and his scalp condition is growing worse.

Three years later, it is too late to have a good head of hair but not too late to improve the appearance of the hair that remains through prompt treatment by John E. Warner and Associates.

Four years later, it is too late, his appearance is permanently marred, a serious handicap. Take care of your hair while you have it.

There is no charge for consultation or examination. Fees for treatment are modgrate and are payable as the treatments are taken—not in advance. There is a separate department for women.

Dodgers Celebrate Cards' Loss

An impromptu conga line is formed outside Pitcher Hugh Casey's restaurant in Brooklyn by some of the Dodgers, their wives and sweethearts after hearing the news that the St. Louis Cardinals lost the night game to Chicago Cubs, thus cinching the National League title for the Dodgers. Shown are (l. to r.) Pitcher Harry Behrman, Harry Taylor, pitcher; Peter Reiser, outfielder; Johnny Jorgensen, infielder; Bobby Bragan, catcher, and Vic Lombardi, pitcher.
